Raymond,2010-12-01 As the title suggests this six chapter book responds to a question which in Western culture goes back to Plato Aristotle Cicero and Quintilian namely What should rhetoric teachers ask their students to read Primarily historical the first two chapters trace conflicting answers to the question above focusing on two constructive results of the debate the re invention of rhetoric and writing as a discipline a coherent and growing body of knowledge and as a result the emergence of independent departments of writing free from departments of English free therefore to develop their own curriculum and to manage their own budgets Additionally the second chapter examines two destructive consequences of this debate the ban of literature from writing courses where students might profitably study both and as a result the often painful departmental splits which not only separate former colleagues but also cramp the pedagogy of those trained to teach both writing and literature More than a survey of key publications this chapter encourages readers to honor the discipline of rhetoric but to make a place for literature on their composition syllabi The next four chapters provide pedagogical support for these chief claims that literature can and should be taught in writing courses and that such readings need not distract students from the primary text their own writing On the contrary these readings motivate serious writing when students feel invited into a conversation on issues that touch their lives These pedagogical chapters then move entering professionals from the theoretical debate to the application of theory therefore the book would serve well professors of courses in composition theory particularly those who enjoy teaching the conflicts and preparing their graduate students to design assignments and courses that apply theories of learning reading and composing Resources in Education ,2001 On the Blunt Edge Shane Borrowman,2011-12-22 On the Blunt Edge Technology in Composition s History and Pedagogy tells the stories of composition s techno history from the roads of the ancient world which allowed students to travel to school to the audio visual aids that populate the classrooms of the modern world Computers are only a small part of this discussion a technological Johnny come lately in a long running pedagogical palaver Rural Literacies Kim Donehower,Charlotte Hogg,Eileen E Schell,2007-06-19 Rural Literacies identifies the problems inherent in trying to understand rural literacy addresses the lack of substantive research on literacy in rural areas and reviews traditional misrepresentations of rural literacy This innovative volume frames debates over literacy in relation to larger social political and economic forces such as the impact of the No Child Left Behind Act on rural schools and the effects of out migration globalization and the loss of small family farms on rural communities Drawing upon traditional literacy and composition research and employing theory from education and sociology the text engages compositionists in broader conversations regarding rural literacies The authors share strategies that will help compositionists participate in pedagogies that are rooted in a richer understanding of rural literacies and work toward sustainability for all communities in a globalized age Forum ,1981 Junior College Journal Walter Crosby Eells,1967 Includes Junior college directory formerly Directory of the junior college 1931 1945 Multimodal Literacies and Emerging Genres Tracey Bowen,Carl Whithaus,2013-04-09 A student s avatar navigates a virtual world and communicates the desires emotions and fears of its creator Yet how can her writing instructor interpret this form of meaningmaking Today multiple modes of communication and information technology are challenging pedagogies in composition and across the disciplines Writing instructors grapple with incorporating new forms into their curriculums and relating them to established literary practices Administrators confront the application of new technologies to the restructuring of courses and the classroom itself Multimodal Literacies and Emerging Genres examines the possibilities challenges and realities of multimodal composition as an effective means of communication The chapters view the ways that writing instructors and their students are exploring the spaces where communication occurs while also asking what else is possible The genres of film audio photography graphics speeches storyboards PowerPoint presentations virtual environments written works and others are investigated to discern both their capabilities and limitations The contributors highlight the responsibility of instructors to guide students in the consideration of their audience and ethical responsibility while also maintaining the ability to speak well Additionally they focus on the need for programmatic changes and a shift in institutional philosophy to close a possible digital divide and remain relevant in digital and global economies Embracing and advancing multimodal communication is essential to both higher education and students The contributors therefore call for the examination of how writing programs faculty and administrators are responding to change and how the many purposes writing serves can effectively converge within composition curricula
