An Annotated Bibliography for Taiwan Film Studies Jim Cheng, James Wicks, Sachie Noguchi, 2016-04-19 Compiled by two skilled librarians and a Taiwanese film and culture specialist this volume is the first multilingual and most comprehensive bibliography of Taiwanese film scholarship designed to satisfy the broad interests of the modern researcher The second book in a remarkable three volume research project An Annotated Bibliography for Taiwan Film Studies catalogues the published and unpublished monographs theses manuscripts and conference proceedings of Taiwanese film scholars from the 1950s to 2013 Paired with An Annotated Bibliography for Chinese Film Studies 2004 which accounts for texts dating back to the 1920s this series brings together like no other reference the disparate voices of Chinese film scholarship charting its unique intellectual arc Organized intuitively the volume begins with reference materials bibliographies cinematographies directories indexes dictionaries and handbooks and then moves through film history the colonial period Taiwan dialect film new Taiwan cinema the 28 incident film genres animated anticommunist documentary ethnographic martial arts teen film reviews film theory and technique interdisciplinary studies Taiwan and mainland China Taiwan and Japan film and aboriginal peoples film and literature film and nationality biographical materials film stories screenplays and scripts film technology and miscellaneous aspects of Taiwanese film scholarship artifacts acts of censorship copyright law distribution channels film festivals and industry practice Works written in multiple languages include transliteration romanized and original script entries which follow universal AACR 2 and American cataloguing standards and professional notations by the editors to aid in the use of sources Loanwords in the Chinese Language Shi Youwei, 2020-12-30 A loanword or wailaici is a word with similar meaning and phonetic form to a word from a foreign language that has been naturalized in the recipient language From ancient times cultural exchanges between China and other countries has brought and integrated a myriad of loanwords to the Chinese language Approaching the topic from a diachronic perspective this volume is the first book length work to chart the developmental trajectory features functions and categories of loanwords into Chinese Beginning with a general introduction to the Chinese loanword system the author delves deeper to explore trends and standardization in Chinese loanword studies and the research landscape of contemporary loanword studies more generally Combining theoretical reflections with real life examples of Chinese loanwords the author discusses not only long established examples from the dictionary but also a great number of significant loanwords adopted in the 21st century The author shows how the complexity of the Chinese loanword system is intertwined with the intricacies of the Chinese character system This title will be an essential reference for students scholars and general readers who are interested in Chinese loanwords linguistics and language and culture The Journal of Burma Studies ,1997 Chinese Historical Sources on Burma Lai-chen Sun, 1997 The Lyrical in Epic Time David Der-wei Wang, 2015-01-20 In this book David Der wei Wang uses the lyrical to rethink the dynamics of Chinese modernity Although the form may seem unusual for representing China's social and political crises in the mid twentieth century Wang contends that national cataclysm and mass movements intensified Chinese lyricism in extraordinary ways Wang calls attention to the form's vigor and variety at an unlikely juncture in Chinese history and the precarious consequences it brought about betrayal self abjuration suicide and silence Despite their divergent backgrounds and commitments the writers artists and intellectuals discussed in this book all took lyricism as a way to explore selfhood in relation to solidarity the role of the artist in history and the potential for poetry to illuminate crisis They experimented with poetry fiction film intellectual treatise political manifesto painting calligraphy and music Western critics Wang shows also used lyricism to critique their perilous epic time He reads Martin Heidegger Theodor Adorno Cleanth Brooks and Paul de Man among others to complete his portrait The Chinese case only further intensifies the permeable nature of lyrical discourse forcing us to reengage with the dominant role of revolution and enlightenment in shaping Chinese and global modernity Wang's remarkable survey reestablishes Chinese lyricism's deep roots in its own native traditions along with Western influences and realizes the relevance of such a lyrical calling of the past century to our time

Chinese Painting and Its Audiences Craig Clunas, 2023-10-17 A history of the reception of Chinese painting from the sixteenth century to the present What is Chinese painting When did it begin And what are the different associations of this term in China and the West In Chinese Painting and Its Audiences which is based on the A W Mellon Lectures in the Fine Arts given at the National Gallery of Art leading art historian Craig Clunas draws from a wealth of artistic masterpieces and lesser known pictures some of them discussed here in English for the first time to show how Chinese painting has been understood by a range of audiences over five centuries from the Ming Dynasty to today Chinese Painting and Its Audiences demonstrates that viewers in China and beyond have irrevocably shaped this great artistic tradition Arguing that audiences within China were crucially important to the evolution of Chinese painting Clunas considers how Chinese artists have imagined the reception of their own work By examining paintings that depict people looking at paintings he introduces readers to ideal types of viewers the scholar the gentleman the merchant the nation and the people In discussing the changing audiences for Chinese art Clunas emphasizes that the diversity and quantity of images in Chinese culture make it impossible to generalize definitively about what constitutes Chinese painting Exploring the complex relationships between works of art and those who look at them Chinese Painting and Its Audiences sheds new light on how the concept of Chinese painting has been formed and reformed over hundreds of years Published in association with the Center for Advanced Study in the Visual Arts National Gallery of Art Washington DC Please note All images in this ebook are presented in black and white and have been reduced in size

Early Film Culture in Hong Kong, Taiwan, and Republican China Emilie Yueh-yu Yeh, 2018-03-22 This volume features new work on cinema in early twentieth century Hong Kong Taiwan and Republican China Looking beyond relatively well studied cities like Shanghai these essays foreground cinema's relationship with imperialism and colonialism and emphasize the rapid development of cinema as a sociocultural institution These essays examine where films were screened

how cinema going as a social activity adapted from and integrated with existing social norms and practices the extent to which Cantonese opera and other regional performance traditions were models for the development of cinematic conventions the role foreign films played in the development of cinema as an industry in the Republican era and much more Fiery Cinema Weihong Bao, 2015-03-15 What was cinema in modern China It was this book tells us a dynamic entity not strictly tied to one media technology one mode of operation or one system of aesthetic code It was in Weihong Bao's term an affective medium a distinct notion of the medium as mediating environment with the power to stir passions frame perception and mold experience In Fiery Cinema Bao traces the permutations of this affective medium from the early through the mid twentieth century exploring its role in aesthetics politics and social institutions Mapping the changing identity of cinema in China in relation to Republican era print media theatrical performance radio broadcasting television and architecture Bao has created an archaeology of Chinese media culture Within this context she grounds the question of spectatorial affect and media technology in China's experience of mechanized warfare colonial modernity and the shaping of the public into consumers national citizens and a revolutionary collective subject Carrying on a close conversation with transnational media theory and history she teases out the tension and affinity between vernacular political modernist and propagandistic articulations of mass culture in China's varied participation in modernity Fiery Cinema advances a radical rethinking of affect and medium as a key insight into the relationship of cinema to the public sphere and the making of the masses By centering media politics in her inquiry of the forgotten future of cinema Bao makes a major intervention into the theory and history of media

Chinese Architecture in an Age of Turmoil, 200-600 Nancy Shatzman Steinhardt, 2014-12-31 Between the fall of the Han dynasty in 220 CE and the year 600 more than thirty dynasties kingdoms and states rose and fell on the eastern side of the Asian continent The founders and rulers of those polities represented the spectrum of peoples in North East and Central Asia Nearly all of them built palaces altars temples tombs and cities and almost without exception the architecture was grounded in the building tradition of China Illustrated with more than 475 color and black and white photographs maps and drawings Chinese Architecture in an Age of Turmoil uses all available evidence Chinese texts secondary literature in six languages excavation reports and most important physical remains to present the architectural history of this tumultuous period in China's history Its author Nancy Shatzman Steinhardt arguably North America's leading scholar of premodern Chinese architecture has done field research at nearly every site mentioned many of which were unknown twenty years ago and have never been described in a Western language The physical remains are a handful of pagodas dozens of cave temples thousands of tombs small scale evidence of architecture such as sarcophaguses and countless representations of buildings in paint and relief sculpture Together they narrate an expansive architectural history that offers the first in depth study of the development century by century of Chinese architecture of third through the sixth centuries plus a view of important buildings from the two hundred years before the third century and the resolution of architecture of this period in later construction The subtext of this history is an examination of Chinese architecture that answers fundamental questions such as What was achieved by a building system of standardized components Why has this building tradition of perishable materials endured so long in China Why did it have so much appeal to non Chinese empire builders Does contemporary architecture of Korea and Japan enhance our understanding of Chinese construction How much of a role did Buddhism play in construction during the period under study In answering these questions the book focuses on the relation between cities and monuments and their heroic or powerful patrons among them Cao Cao Shi Hu Empress Dowager Hu Gao Huan and lesser known individuals Specific and uniquely Chinese aspects of architecture are explained The relevance of sweeping and sometimes uncomfortable concepts relevant to the Chinese architectural tradition such as colonialism diffusionism and the role of historical memory also resonate through the book

A Jesuit in the Forbidden City R. Po-chia Hsia, 2010-10-28 A 16th century Italian Jesuit Matteo Ricci was the founder of the Catholic Mission in China and one of the most famous missionaries of all time A pioneer in bringing Christianity to China Ricci spent twenty eight years in the country in which time he crossed the cultural divides between China and the West by immersing himself in the language and culture of his hosts Even 400 years later he is still one of the best known westerners in China celebrated for introducing western scientific and religious ideas to China and for explaining Chinese culture to Europe The first critical biography of Ricci to use all relevant sources both Chinese and Western A Jesuit in the Forbidden City tells the story of a remarkable life that bridged Counter Reformation Catholic Europe and China under the Ming dynasty Hsia follows the life of Ricci from his childhood in Macerata through his education in Rome to his sojourn in Portuguese India before the start of his long journey of self discovery and cultural encounter in the Ming realm Along the way we glimpse the workings of the Portuguese maritime empire in Asia the mission of the Society of Jesus and life in the European enclave of Macau on the Chinese coast as well as invaluable sketches of Ricci's fellow Jesuits and portraits of the Chinese mandarins who formed networks indispensable for Ricci's success Examining a range of new sources Hsia offers important new insights into Ricci's long period of trial and frustration in Guangdong province where he first appeared in the persona of a foreign Buddhist monk before the crucial move to Nanchang in 1595 that led to his sustained intellectual conversation with a leading Confucian scholar and subsequent synthesis of Christianity and Confucianism in propagating the Gospels in China With his expertise in cartography mathematics and astronomy Ricci quickly won recognition especially after he had settled in Nanjing in 1598 the southern capital of the Ming dynasty As his reputation and friendships grew Ricci launched into a sharp polemic against Buddhism while his career found its crowning achievement in the imperial capital of Beijing leaving behind a life work and legacy that is still very much alive today
