Right and Turtles Can Fly:

The History of Genocide in Cinema Jonathan Friedman, William Hewitt, 2016-10-27 The organization Genocide Watch estimates that 100 million civilians around the globe have lost their lives as a result of genocide in only the past sixty years. Over the same period the visual arts in the form of documentary footage has aided international efforts to document genocide and prosecute those responsible but this book argues that fictional representation occupies an equally important and problematic place in the process of shaping minds on the subject. Edited by two of the leading experts in the field, The History of Genocide in Cinema analyzes fictional and semi-fictional portrayals of genocide focusing on, amongst others, the repression of indigenous populations in Australia, the genocide of Native Americans in the 19th century, the Herero genocide in Africa, the Holocaust, Stalin's policy of starvation in Ukraine, the Nazi Holocaust, Nanking, and Darfur. Comprehensive and unique in its focus on fiction films as opposed to documentaries, The History of Genocide in Cinema is an essential resource for students and researchers in the fields of cultural history, Holocaust studies, and the history of film.

Children and Violence Bina D'Costa, 2016-10-04 Explores the conceptualisation of childhood in South Asia and comments on the shift from welfare to the protection of children's rights in the region.

No Place for a War Baby Donna Seto, 2016-05-06 Donna Seto investigates why children born of wartime sexual violence are rarely included in post-conflict processes of reconciliation and recovery. The focus on children born of wartime sexual violence questions the framework of understanding war and recognizes that certain individuals are often forgotten or neglected. This book considers how children are neglected sites for the reproduction of global norms. It approaches this topic through an interdisciplinary perspective that questions how silence surrounding the issue of wartime sexual violence has prevented justice for children born of war from being achieved. In considering this, Seto examines how the theories and practices of mainstream International Relations (IR) can silence the experiences of war rape survivors and children born of wartime sexual violence and explores the theoretical frameworks within IR and the institutional structures that uphold protection regimes for children and women.

Forgetting Children Born of War Charli Carpenter, 2010-05-31 Sexual violence and exploitation occur in many conflict zones and the children born of such acts face discrimination, stigma, and infanticide. Yet the massive transnational network of organizations working to protect war-affected children has for two decades remained curiously silent on the needs of this vulnerable population. Focusing specifically on the case of Bosnia and Herzegovina, Charli Carpenter questions the framing of atrocity by human rights organizations and the limitations these narratives impose on their response. She finds that human rights groups set their agendas according to certain grievances: the claims of female rape victims or the complaints of aggrieved minorities, for example, and that these concerns can overshadow the needs of others. Incorporating her research into a host of other conflict zones, Carpenter shows that the social construction of rights claims is contingent upon the social construction of wrongs. According to Carpenter, this pathology prevents the full protection of children born of war.
