Labys, 2012-12-06 This book provides a framework for analyzing and forecasting a variety of mineral and energy markets and related industries Such modeling activity has been at the forefront of the economic and engineering professions for some time having received a major stimulus following the first oil price shock in 1973 Since that time other shocks have affected these markets and industries causing disequilibrium economic adjustments which are difficult to analyze and to predict Moreover geopolitics remains an important factor which can destabilize crude oil markets and associated refining industries Mineral and energy modeling consequently has become a major interest of energy related corporations mining and drilling companies metal manufacturers public utilities investment banks national government agencies and international organizations This book hopes to advance mineral and energy modeling as follows 1 The modeling process is presented sequentially by leading the model builder from model specification estimation simulation and validation to practical model applications including explaining history analyzing policy and market and price forecasting 2 New developments in modeling approaches are presented which encompass econometric market and industry models spatial equilibrium and programming models optimal resource depletion models input output models economic sector models and macro oriented energy interaction models including computable general equilibrium 3 The verification and application of the models is considered not only individually but also in relation to the performance of alternative modeling approaches and 4 The modeling framework includes a perspective on new directions so that the present model building advice will extend into the future

An Outline of International Price Theories Chi-Yuen Wu, 2007 Chi Yuen Wu from China was an Austrian price theorist writing during Mises's own time His great contribution was this 1939 treatise written while studying at the London School of Economics under the guidance of Lionel Robbins Though the author deals primarily with the history of thought Murray Rothbard considered it to be a seminal contribution to the theory of price and international trade

Regional Economics Harry W. Richardson, 1970-11-26 Prices, Products, and People Gregory J. Scott, 1995 The authors go beyond the traditional presentation of economic principles offering instead a series of applied methods for data collection and analysis Drawing on extensive experience in Africa Asia and Latin America they not only describe specific procedures but also provide a wealth of illustrative research results This book will be particularly useful to teaching professionals development specialists and applied researchers working in developing countries

An Economic Analysis of the Pricing Efficiency and Market Organization of the U.S. Grain Export System Neilson Chase Conklin, 1982 Swedish Economics Bo Sandelin, 1998 This set reprints works by and about Swedish economists working between the turn of the century and 1960 The editor provides an overview of Swedish economics as well as growth and specialization within the discipline

Situation and Outlook Series, 1988 Value and Unequal Exchange in International Trade Andrea Ricci, 2021-05-19 Contrary to the claims made by neoliberal governments and mainstream academics this book argues that the huge increase in trade in recent decades has not made the world a fairer place instead the age of globalization has become a time of mass migration caused by increasing global inequality The theory of unequal exchange challenges the free trade doctrine claiming that transfers of value from poorer to richer countries are hidden behind apparently equivalent market transactions Following a critical review of the existing approaches the book proposes a general theory of unequal exchange in the light of an innovative reconstruction of Marx's international law of value in which money and exchange rates play a crucial role in decoupling value captured from value produced by different countries even in perfectly competitive world markets On this theoretical basis the book provides an empirical analysis of the international transfers of value in both traditional trade and Global Value Chains The resulting world mapping of unequal exchange shows the geographical hierarchy of capital global exploitation by revealing a world divided into two quite separate camps of donor and receiving countries the former being the poorer countries and the latter the richer countries This book is addressed to scholars and students of economics and social sciences as well as activists of the North and the South interested in a better understanding of the asymmetric power relations implied in global trade It makes a significant contribution to the literature on political economy trade Marxism international relations and economic geography Interregional Competition in Agriculture Ronald Lester Mighell, John Donald Black, Harvard University. Committee on Research in the Social Sciences, United States. Bureau of Agricultural Economics, 1951 Agricultural planning individual or national depends on an understanding of competition in farm products between one region of the United States and another The agriculture of different parts of the United States competes constantly with that of other parts as for example the early competition in cotton between the northern frontier and southern growers later between the southwest frontier and the Old South and recently between California and the South There is equally strong competition between potato growing regions It is this inter regional competition in a country with no trade barriers which two outstanding economists analyze in this book They present the results of a concrete study of one outstanding example competition in dairy production between the Northeastern States and the Lake States of the central Midwest for the New England market for fluid milk and cream Six selected sample areas were analyzed carefully in each region in 1935 36 and predictions were made about future production and marketing of dairy products in each of these areas Ten years later these areas were surveyed and the production changes compared with the predictions The authors conclusions about the conditions under which New England will be able to continue to compete with the lake states for the New England market are significant in themselves Even more important however is the development of a method of analysis which can be widely employed to furnish the information which is needed to guide future developments in the agriculture of the United States or in any other country This study is therefore an important contribution to the theory of interregional and international trade Food Security in Africa Alexander Sarris, 2010-01-01 As they often do Jamie Morrison and Alexander Sarris have provided researchers policy makers and the interested public with the firm empirical grounding needed for sound agricultural development policies They have synthesized from a rich and varied set of country studies a unique contribution to one of the key challenges of our times increasing the productivity of smallholder food production in the age of globalization Timothy A Wise Tufts University US Food security has been a major concern in Africa for decades and a more pressing problem with recent increases in food prices The editors and contributors to this volume are experts in the field and should be commended for a timely informative and in places challenging analysis of food production and markets in eastern and southern Africa The volume brings a refreshing variety of theoretical analytical and informed case study approaches to bear on the food security problem it should be read by anybody seriously interested in African development Oliver Morrissey University of Nottingham UK Drawing on insights from theoretical applications empirically based approaches and case study experience this book contributes to the improved design and use of trade and related policy interventions in staple food markets Trade policy interventions have a potentially critical role to play in the development of staple food markets in developing countries and as a source of revenue in wider processes of rural development Governments have long defended trade and related policy interventions in staple food markets on the basis of food security concerns. However, the design and implementation of these policies has often resulted in unintended impacts, increasing the risks faced by private sector actors and reducing their incentives for investment in improved market performance. In the context of increasingly volatile staple food markets, this book, commissioned from leading experts in this field, seeks to enhance dialogue between stakeholders involved in and affected by the design and use of trade and related policy interventions. This significant book will appeal to policy analysts and decision makers influential in the design and implementation of trade and related market interventions, as well as students of development economics. Researchers contributing to debates on the use and impacts of trade and related market interventions in staple food markets in poor countries will also find this volume of great benefit.
