agricultural markets in Africa Kherallah, Mylene,Delgado, Christopher L.,Gabre-Madhin, Eleni Z.,Minot, Nicholas,Johnson, Michael,2002-01-01 The long term reduction of hunger and poverty in Sub Saharan Africa remains one of the great challenges for the international development community Eliminating hunger and promoting widespread growth in the region inevitably involves agriculture given its central role in the region s economies Over the past 20 years most African governments have carried out reforms to deregulate agricultural markets and reduce the role of state enterprises How much has the state actually withdrawn from agricultural markets Have well functioning private markets emerged How successful were these reforms in boosting agricultural production economic growth and the incomes of the rural poor What lessons can we learn from the reform process The authors of this book address these questions through an analysis based on an extensive review of experiences with reform focusing on three major agricultural markets fertilizer food crops and export crops They examine the historical rationales for intervention the factors contributing to reform the process of implementation and the impact of the reforms on farmers and consumers in Sub Saharan Africa The authors find that reforms have had many favorable results but that the impact has been muted by partial implementation and structural constraints They propose a new agenda for promoting the development of agricultural markets in Sub Saharan Africa identifying areas where governments can play a supportive role They argue that appropriate agricultural marketing policies and investments can improve livelihoods and the economic health of the region

The World's Markets, 1922 International Stock Market Linkages in Southern Africa Keith

Jefferis, Charles Okeahalam, Tebogo Matome, 1999      The Emergence of Land Markets in Africa Stein Terje Holden, Keijiro Otsuka, Frank M. Place, 2008 This book is the first systematic attempt to address emerging land markets and their implications for poverty equity and efficiency across a number of African countries The high incidence of poverty and the need for increased agricultural productivity remain acute in rural areas of sub Saharan Africa where a lack of secure land rights and a growing scarcity of land relative to the size of the population are becoming increasingly critical issues Indeed land issues in the region are high on the international policy agenda Yet our knowledge about land tenure security and other rural factor markets such as labor oxen manure purchased inputs and credit is far from adequate to formulate sensible policies The case studies in the book show that while land markets and especially informal markets have been rapidly emerging in densely populated parts of Africa and have generally been to the benefit of the poor their functions remain imperfect This is due to policy induced tenure insecurity and the fragmentation of agricultural land Applying rigorous quantitative analyses the book provides a basis for taking into account the role of land markets in national land policies All too often the authors argue land policies have been extreme either prohibiting all land transactions or giving unrestricted freehold rights to a small elite at the expense of the poor From the long experience in Asia it is known that such policies are detrimental to both production efficiency and equity of land use The authors argue that future policies in Africa should work with the markets Regulations should be imposed only with careful testing that they are having the intended effects The Emergence of Land Markets in Africa is a resource for teaching in developed and developing countries as it provides both comprehensive reviews of the literature and detailed case studies It is intended to facilitate the dialogue between researchers and policymakers as well as inspire researchers to go further in their investigations and build an even stronger basis for good policies The Emergence of Land Markets in Africa is the first publication in the new Environment for Development EfD book series EfD books focus on research and applications in environmental and natural resource economics as they are relevant to poverty reduction and environmental problems in developing countries The EfD book series is part of the EfD initiative www.environmentfordevelopment.org      Africa the Good News Steuart Pennington, 2008 Africa the good news is the conclusion of a year of extensive research and includes contributions from over 40 leading writers on Africa from the continent and beyond It provides insights into what is happening in Africa today It is about Africa and the good in Africa Jacket      Making Markets Work for Africa Eleanor M. Fox, Mor Bakhoun, 2018-12-19 This book focuses on market law and policy in sub Saharan Africa showing how markets can be harnessed by poorer and developing economies to help make the markets work for them to help them integrate into the world economy and provide a better standard of living for their people while preserving their values of inclusive development It explores uses of power both by dominant firms often multinationals and incumbent governments and cronies to ring fence their market positions and deprive rivals often the indigenous people from fair access to markets and highlights how competition authorities are pushing back and winning fair access lowering prices of goods and services especially for the poorer population The book also examines the next level up regionalism and provides the facts that show how regionalism has so far failed to meet its promise of freeing markets from cross border restraints by large firms that operate across national borders On the more technical side the book takes a deep look at the competition policies of sets of nations in sub Saharan Africa West South eastern and South It examines the performance of the competition authorities of particular nations including how they handle cartels monopolies and mergers their standards of illegality and their methodologies for incorporating public interest values into their analyses Observing the good works by a number of the national competition authorities the book is optimistic about the role of the national competition authorities in protecting the people from abuses of economic power and perhaps in the future the role of regional authorities and less formal networks in promoting an African voice in defence of competition
