This book examines two central aspects of Japanese management growth pursuit by internal investment as opposed to acquisition and intensive competition within and between Japanese firms. It also looks at how Japanese firms maintain efficiency and flexibility under the apparently rigid system of lifetime employment. The author begins by enquiring into the financial and human aspects of the firm with a particular emphasis placed on the human side. The motivation, behaviour and organization of Japanese management are discussed and the consequences of Japan's management system on its industrial organization and macroeconomy are examined. Throughout the book it is emphasized that competition is at the heart of the Japanese economy and management to the same if not to a greater degree than in the West. This competition is enhanced by the growth preference of Japanese management and competition in turn makes growth feasible. British Business, 1988-12-30
