

A Martian Odyssey, and Other Science Fiction Tales

Stanley G. Weinbaum

Introduction by Sam Moskowitz, with an autobiographical sketch by
Stanley G. Weinbaum

This is the first time that all of Stanley G. Weinbaum's short stories have been collected and published in a single volume. For science fiction fans, this is an event of considerable importance. Weinbaum's career was brief and meteoric: an instant success with the publication of A Martian Odyssey in 1934, he died only 25 months later in 1935 and, in that brief time, created a remarkable body of work. His writings were immensely influential; he is considered the father of modern science fiction writing. This volume contains all the stories from two previously published books, A Martian Odyssey and others (1940) and The Red Pile (1962), plus Graph, a previously uncollected short story, a poem, The Last Martian, and an autobiographical sketch by the author.

Series Editor: Sam Moskowitz

Sam Moskowitz is universally acknowledged as science fiction's leading authority; the author of several outstanding background works on science fiction, and editor of important science fiction anthologies. The Hyperion CLASSICS OF SCIENCE FICTION series is a collection of landmark works assessing their value, turning centuries of speculation into the future from 1750-1950.

Weinbaum's adept use of a narrative style that balances speculative ideas with emotional depth invites readers to ponder the philosophical implications of humanity's place in the universe. Stanley G. Weinbaum, a key figure in the evolution of science fiction, was deeply influenced by his background in engineering and physics, which informed the technical accuracy of his work. His brief but impactful career, tragically cut short by illness at the age of 36, left a lasting legacy through innovative storytelling that married imaginative concepts with humanist themes.
