

MARTIN RIDES THE MOON

by Vera Davis

Eleven-year-old Martin's whole life had changed and his life affairs—on matters—since he had lost his hearing in an accident. His mother was kind and sent the best of books where hearing did not matter, and refused to take any interest when his father, a Dartmouth farmer, tried to make money by buying him a second-hand pony; but Martin felt out of, even from the pony. However, the day the pony arrived on road it moved, and Martin, being weary in bed, was suddenly aware of the pony alone in the orchard. When he found himself to stumble out in the darkness and soon to bring a under cover a friendship was born between the boy and the pony. Martin named the pony Tappan, and with the help of Jane, from a neighbouring farm, and with Tappan as his friend, Martin learned to live with his disability, and to face the ultimate emergency when Tappan met with a serious accident. This is a moving and exciting story written for young people by a well-known novelist.
