Questions For Feminism Reading The Romance:

Reading the Romance Janice A. Radway, 2009-11-18 Originally published in 1984 Reading the Romance challenges popular and often demeaning myths about why romantic fiction one of publishing's most lucrative categories captivates millions of women readers Among those who have disparaged romance reading are feminists literary critics and theorists of mass culture They claim that romances enforce the woman reader's dependence on men and acceptance of the repressive ideology purveyed by popular culture Radway questions such claims arguing that critical attention must shift from the text itself taken in isolation to the complex social event of reading She examines that event from the complicated business of publishing and distribution to the individual reader's engagement with the text Radway's provocative approach combines reader response criticism with anthropology and feminist psychology Asking readers themselves to explore their reading motives habits and rewards she conducted interviews in a midwestern town with forty two romance readers whom she met through Dorothy Evans a chain bookstore employee who has earned a reputation as an expert on romantic fiction Evans defends her customers choice of entertainment reading romances she tells Radway is no more harmful than watching sports on television We read books so we won't cry is the poignant explanation one woman offers for her reading habit Indeed Radway found that while the women she studied devote themselves to nurturing their families these wives and mothers receive insufficient devotion or nurturance in return In romances the women find not only escape from the demanding and often tiresome routines of their lives but also a hero who supplies the tenderness and admiring attention that they have learned not to expect The heroines admired by Radway's group defy the expected stereotypes they are strong independent and intelligent That such characters often find themselves to be victims of male aggression and almost always resign themselves to accepting conventional roles in life has less to do Radway argues with the women readers fantasies and choices than with their need to deal with a fear of masculine dominance These romance readers resent not only the limited choices in their own lives but the patronizing attitude that men especially express toward their reading tastes In fact women read romances both to protest and to escape temporarily the narrowly defined role prescribed for them by a patriarchal culture Paradoxically the books that they read make conventional roles for women seem desirable It is this complex relationship between culture text and woman reader that Radway urges feminists to address Romance readers she argues should be encouraged to deliver their protests in the arena of actual social relations rather than to act them out in the solitude of the imagination In a new introduction Janice Radway places the book within the context of current scholarship and offers both an explanation and critique of the study's limitations

Women, Feminism and Media Sue Thornham, 2007-05-30 Over the past few decades feminist media scholarship has flourished to become a major influence on the fields of media film and cultural studies At the same time the cultural shift towards post feminism has raised questions about the continuing validity of feminism as a defining term for this work This book explores the changing and often

ambivalent relationship between the three terms women feminism and media in the light of these recent debates At the same time it places them within the broader discussions within feminist theory about subjectivity identity culture and narrative of which they have formed a crucial part The book is organised around four key topic areas Fixing into Images offers a rethinking of one of the first preoccupations of feminist media analysis the relationship between women and images Narrating Femininity explores the narratives of femininity produced in media texts in the light of theories of narrative and identity Real Women examines both the continuing absence of women s voices from the genres of news and documentary and their over presence within popular reality media forms Finally Technologies of Difference examines the relationship between feminism women and new media technologies Throughout the book explores key issues within feminist media studies both through specific examples and via critical engagement with the work of major theoretical writers Features A completely up to date study of the key areas of issue and debate in feminist media studies Includes case studies and discussion of the work of key writers in the field Contains readings of specific texts ranging from news and advertising to reality TV and postfeminist TV drama

Feminism and the Power of Love Adriana García-Andrade,Lena Gunnarsson,Anna Jónasdóttir,2018-04-17 The power of love has become a renewed matter of feminist and non feminist attention in the 21st century s theory debates What is this power Is it a form of domination Or is it a liberating force in our contemporary societies Within Feminism and the Power of Love lies the central argument that although love is a crucial site of gendered power asymmetries it is also a vital source of human empowerment that we cannot live without Instead of emphasizing either or this enlightening title puts the dualities and contradictions of love center stage Indeed by offering various theoretical perspectives on what makes love such a central value and motivator for people this title will increase one s understanding as to why love can keep people in its grip even when practiced in ways that deplete and oppress In light of such analyses the contributions within Feminism and the Power of Love present new perspectives on the conditions and characteristics of non oppressive mutually enhancing ways of loving Bridging the gap between Feminist Affect Studies and Feminist Love Studies this book will appeal to undergraduate and postgraduate students including postdoctoral researchers interested in fields such as women s and gender studies sociology political science philosophy cultural studies and sexuality studies

Reading Cultures Molly Abel Travis, 1998 Molly Abel Travis unites reader theory with an analysis of historical conditions and various cultural contexts in this discussion of the reading and reception of twentieth century literature in the United States Travis moves beyond such provisional conclusions as the text produces the reader or the reader produces the text and considers the ways twentieth century readers and texts attempt to constitute and appropriate each other at particular cultural moments and according to specific psychosocial exigencies She uses the overarching concept of the reader in and out of the text both to differentiate the reader implied by the text from the actual reader and to discuss such in and out movements that occur in the process of reading as the alternation between immersion and interactivity and between role playing and unmasking Most reader theorists fix on the product of reading and exclude the process Travis notes which means they necessarily focus on the text Even theorists who argue for the reader's resistance make the text so determinant that they conceive of text and reader as discrete entities in a closed universe with these entities exerting force and counterforce respectively Missing in these accounts are wave and field theories concerned with such dynamic and contrastive effects as changes in the art of literary reading over historical periods and differences among readers in the context of a cultural field Travis seeks to fill gaps in current reader theories by focusing on process and difference Unlike most reader theorists Travis is concerned with the agency of the reader Her conception of agency in reading is informed by performance psychoanalytic and feminist theories This agency involves compulsive reiterative performance in which readers attempt to find themselves by going outside the self engaging in literary role playing in the hope of finally and fully identifying the self through self differentiation Furthermore readers never escape a social context they are both constructed and actively constructing in that they read as part of interpretive communities and are involved in collaborative creativity or what Kendall Walton calls collective imagining New Directions in American Reception Study Philip Goldstein, James L. Men in Feminism (RLE Feminist Theory) Alice Jardine, Paul Smith, 2013-05-20 What are men doing in feminist discourse Although many feminists have commented on the relation actual or possible of men to feminist thinking and practice and although some male academics have written about feminism there has so far been little shared discussion Men in Feminism is the first substantial attempt to produce a dialogue between feminists and their male allies This lively book comprised of essays by both men and women is a controversial sally in the current debate over the future of feminist theory Its focus is one seemingly direct and yet surprisingly prickly question the actual and potential relationship of men to the now impressive and widely recognized body of feminist writing Each essay attempts to assess the benefits or damage of male participation in feminism several of the contributions stand in direct dialogue with others The editors present mediate and reflect upon the agreements and arguments in the book as well as between themselves as editors Their dialogue afterword draws together the questions at the heart of the volume Offering few comfortable answers Men in Feminism will open up discussion of this theoretical and thoroughly political issue

Shakespeare Kiernan Ryan, 2014-06-11 This is the first collection of criticism on Shakespeare s romances to register the impact of modern literary theory on interpretations of these plays Kiernan Ryan brings together the most important recent essays on Pericles Cymbeline The Winter s Tale and The Tempest the greatest of the last plays staging a dynamic debate between feminist poststructuralist psychoanalytic and new historicist views of the masterpieces Shakespeare wrote at the close of his career The book aims not only to anthologise accounts of the last plays by leading Shakespearean critics including Stephen Greenblatt Janet Adelman Leah Marcus Howard Felperin and Steven Mullaney but also to dramatise what is at stake in the choice of a particular critical approach It allows the student to compare the strengths and limitations of a deconstructive and a feminist reading of the same romance or to test the plausibility of one psychoanalytic angle on the last plays against another The headnotes that preface the essays highlight their distinctive slants on Shakespearean romance unpack the theoretical assumptions that steer their interpretations and throw into relief the key points at which their authors collide or converge The editor s introduction places the essays in the context of twentieth century criticism of the last plays and makes a powerful case for a fundamental reappraisal of Shakespearean romance The comprehensive fully annotated bibliography provides an unrivalled guide to further reading on all four plays
