Reporting Africa:

The Racial Dynamics of Reporting Africa Omega Douglas, 2025-05-21 This book critically considers how and why centring race in the analysis of journalism deepens our understanding of how race is constructed and experienced in society. In doing so, it offers a theoretical framework for unpacking and dismantling racism within journalism practice and representation. Linking race critical post and decolonial theories to the structural constructivist framework of journalistic field theory, this book examines the role of Black journalists and INGOs in reporting on sub-Saharan Africa in dominant British news organisations. This study goes beyond journalistic representation to consider the racial dynamics informing the production of Western news and the complex relations between journalists of colour and the institutional culture of dominant Western news organisations. Through a case study and in-depth original interviews, the author addresses the racialisation of mainstream UK news production and news representations of Africa and shows how and why mediated racialised discourses occur and recur, as well as what to do about them. Advancing studies of race representation, Black identities and journalism studies, The Racial Dynamics of Reporting Africa contributes to decolonising journalism media and communication studies. It is recommended reading for students, academics and practitioners in these areas.

Reporting China in Africa Herman Wasserman, 2016-03-31 This book discusses the growing media engagement between China and Africa from the point of view of both these regions. The rapid increase in Sino-African contact has led to many controversies and debates in the media, often represented in simplistic terms and stereotypes that call for more in-depth scholarly analysis. Not only have the relationships between Africa and China made headlines in the media, but the media itself has also become increasingly central in the exchanges of capital and human resources between these two regions. The media has also become the terrain where China's new foreign policy takes shape in the form of soft power. This volume brings together authors from Africa, China, the US, UK and Europe to provide analysis, comment and empirical evidence to deepen our understanding of how the geopolitical shift towards the emerging regions of China and Africa are playing out on media terrain. The implications for transnational flows of media capital and content on journalistic approaches, press freedom and normative frameworks are discussed, as well as how African journalists have responded to these changes. The result is a collection of perspectives that refuses simplistic conclusions about what the growing engagement between China and Africa might mean, but presents a range of arguments informed by scholarly research. This book was originally published as a special issue of Ecquid Novi: African Journalism Studies.

Making Human Rights a Reality Emilie M. Hafner-Burton, 2013-03-21 In the last six decades one of the most striking developments in international law is the emergence of a massive body of legal norms and procedures aimed at protecting human rights In many countries though there is little relationship between international law and the actual protection of human rights on the ground Making Human Rights a Reality takes a fresh look at why it s been so hard for international law to have much impact in parts of the world where human rights are most at risk Emilie Hafner Burton argues that more progress is possible if human rights promoters work strategically with the group of states that have dedicated resources to human rights protection These human rights stewards can focus their resources on places where the tangible benefits to human rights are greatest Success will require setting priorities as well as engaging local stakeholders such as nongovernmental organizations and national human rights institutions To date promoters of international human rights law have relied too heavily on setting universal goals and procedures and not enough on assessing what actually works and setting priorities Hafner Burton illustrates how with a different strategy human rights stewards can make international law more effective and also safeguard human rights for more of the world population

Mistaking Africa Curtis Keim, Carolyn Somerville, 2021-12-27 For many in the west the mention of Africa immediately conjures up images of safaris ferocious animals sparsely dressed tribesmen and impenetrable jungles Newspaper headlines rarely touch on Africa but when they do they often mention authoritarian rule corruption genocide devastating illnesses or civil war Advertising movies amusement parks cartoons and many other corners of society all convey strong mental images of the continent that together form a collective consciousness Few think to question these perceptions or how they came to be so deeply lodged in western minds Mistaking Africa looks at the historical evolution of this mind set and examines the role that popular media plays in its creation The authors address the most prevalent myths and preconceptions and demonstrate how these prevent a true understanding of the enormously diverse peoples and cultures of Africa Updated throughout the fifth edition considers images of Africa from across the world and provides new analysis of what Africans are doing themselves to rewrite the stories of their continent particularly through social and digital media Mistaking Africa is an important book for African studies courses and for anyone interested in unraveling misperceptions about the continent The British Press, Public Opinion and the End of Empire in Africa Rosalind Coffey, 2022-01-30 This book provides fresh insights into how the British press affected both British perceptions of decolonisation in Africa and British policy towards it during the wind of change period It also reveals for the first time the extent to which British newspaper coverage was of relevance to African and white settler readerships British newspapers informed the political strategies and civic cultures of African activists nationalists liberal whites in Africa the staunchest of white settler communities and the first governments of independent African states and their opponents The British press British public opinion and British journalists became etched into the lived experiences of the end of empire affecting Anglo African and Anglo settler relations to this day Arguing that the press cast a transnational web of influence over the decolonisation process in Africa the author explores the relationships between the British African and settler public and political spheres and highlights the mediating power of the British press during the late 1950s The book draws from a range of British newspapers official government documents newspaper archives interviews memoirs autobiographies and articles printed in African and white settler papers It will be of interest to historians of decolonisation Africa the media and the British Empire Africa Tony Binns, Etienne Nel, Alan Dixon, Kenneth Lynch, 2023-12-08 Africa Diversity and Development introduces and demystifies Africa's diversity and dynamism and considers how its peoples and environments have interacted through time and space The book examines the background and diversity of Africa's social cultural economic political and environmental systems as well as key development issues which have affected Africa in the past and are likely to be significant in shaping the future of the continent These include the impact of HIV AIDS sources of conflict and post conflict reconstruction the state and governance the nature of African economies in a global context and future development trajectories This second edition features new chapters on history and governance health separate chapters on rural and urban development and updated content on all aspects of the continent particularly aspects of culture and ethnicity It is richly illustrated throughout with diagrams and plates and contains a wealth of detailed up to date case studies and current data This textbook is a refreshing interdisciplinary text which enhances understanding of the background to Africa's current position and clarifies possible future scenarios It will be a valuable resource for students taking modules on Africa African Development and Geography of Africa and will also prove useful to students in the wider fields of Geography Development Studies Global Studies Environment and Society and African Politics Partners for

Good Tom Levitt, 2016-05-13 After a century in which charities suspected the motives of cynical business people and business people dismissed the contributions of amateur volunteers the two sectors are coming together today as never before The third sector has increased its business capacity through the experience gained from a decade of providing commissioned services to the public sector Society today expects employers to do more to engage with both communities and good causes and the business case for doing so can be and is being made But business also realises that charities do conscience better than they can and so co working is increasingly being sought In Partners for Good Tom Levitt points the way to successful partnerships at local national and international levels There is now even an agreed international standard on what constitutes the social responsibility obligations of organisations operating in all sectors in all parts of the world over and above international legal frameworks Sustainability today refers to the triple bottom line financial social environmental rather than being a green concept alone On the down side grants and other funding opportunities provided by governments to the third sector over the last ten years are suddenly ending and support structures are disappearing The incentives for forging successful and sustainable win win partnerships between businesses and charities in the new Big Society are therefore high however demanding the time scale on offer
