Reproducing The Future:

Reproducing the Future Marilyn Strathern,1992 These essays written at the time when the Bill for Human Fertilization and Embryology Act 1990 was going through Parliament touch on the British debate on in vitro fertilization gamete donation and maternal surrogacy from an anthropological perspective The implications of the medical developments that lay behind the Act are world wide and these new procreative possibilities formulate new possibilities for thinking about kinship The essays are informed by recent re thinking of models of kinship in Melanesia Reproducing the Future Marilyn

Reproducing Athens Susan Lape,2009-01-10 Reproducing Athens examines the role of romantic comedy particularly the plays of Menander in defending democratic culture and transnational polis culture against various threats during the initial and most fraught period of the Hellenistic Era Menander s romantic comedies which focus on ordinary citizens who marry for love are most often thought of as entertainments devoid of political content Against the view Susan Lape argues that Menander's comedies are explicitly political His nationalistic comedies regularly conclude by performing the laws of democratic citizen marriage thereby promising the generation of new citizens His transnational comedies on the other hand defend polis life against the impinging Hellenistic kingdoms either by transforming their representatives into proper citizen husbands or by rendering them ridiculous romantic losers who pose no real threat to citizen or city In elaborating the political work of romantic comedy this book also demonstrates the importance of gender kinship and sexuality to the making of democratic civic ideology Paradoxically by championing democratic culture against various Hellenistic outsiders comedy often resists the internal status and gender boundaries on which democratic culture was based Comedy's ability to reproduce democratic culture in scandalous fashion exposes the logic of civic inclusion produced by the contradictions in Athens's desperately politicized gender system Combining careful textual analysis with an understanding of the context in which Menander wrote Reproducing Athens profoundly changes the way we read his plays and deepens our understanding of Athenian democratic culture

Transgenerational Media Industries Derek Johnson, 2019-11-12

Within corporate media industries adults produce children's entertainment. Yet children presumed to exist outside the professional adult world make their own contributions to it creating and posting unboxing videos for example that provide content for toy marketers. Many adults meanwhile avidly consume entertainment products nominally meant for children. Media industries reincorporate this market disrupting participation into their strategies even turning to adult consumers to pass fandom to the next generation. Derek Johnson presents an innovative perspective that looks beyond the simple category of kids media to consider how entertainment industry strategies invite producers and consumers alike to cross boundaries between adulthood and childhood professional and amateur new media and old. Revealing the social norms reproductive ideals and labor hierarchies on which such transformations depend he identifies the lines of authority and power around which legacy media institutions like television comics and toys imagine their futures in a digital age. Johnson proposes that it is not strategies of media production but of media reproduction that are most essential in this context. To understand these critical intersections he investigates transgenerational industry practice in television co-viewing recruitment of adult comic readers as youth outreach ambassadors media professionals identification with childhood the branded management of adult fans of LEGO and the labor of child YouTube video creators. These dynamic relationships may appear to disrupt generational and industry boundaries alike. However by considering who media industries empower when generating the future in these reproductive terms and who they leave out Johnson ultimately demonstrates how their strategies reinforce existing power structures. This book makes vital contributions to media studies in its fresh approach to the intersections of adulthood and childhood its attention to the relationship between legacy and digital media industries and its advancement of dialogue between media production and consumption researchers. It will interest scholars in media industry studies and across media studies more broadly with particular appeal to those concerned about the current and future reach of media industries into our lives.

Monstrosity, Disability, and the Posthuman in the Medieval and Early Modern World Richard H. Godden, Asa Simon Mittman, 2019-11-21

This collection examines the intersection of the discourses of disability and monstrosity in a timely and necessary intervention in the scholarly fields of Disability Studies and Monster Studies. Analyzing Medieval and Early Modern art and literature replete with images of non-normative bodies these essays consider the pernicious history of defining people with distinctly non-normative bodies or non-normative cognition as monsters. In many cases throughout Western history a figure marked by what Rosemarie Garland Thomson has termed the extraordinary body is labeled a monster. This volume explores the origins of this conflation examines the problems and possibilities inherent in it and casts both disability and monstrosity in light of emergent empowering discourses of posthumanism.
