Defining and Defending the Open Door Policy Gregory Moore, 2015-05-27 There has been little examination of the China policy of the Theodore Roosevelt administration Works dealing with the topic fall either into brief discussions in biographies of Roosevelt general surveys of Sino American relations or studies of special topics such as the Chinese exclusion issue which encompass a portion of the Roosevelt years Moreover the subject has been overshadowed somewhat by studies of problems between Japan and the United States in this era The goal of this study is to offer a more complete examination of the American relationship with China during Roosevelt's presidency The focus will be on the discussion of major issues and concerns in the relationship of the two nations from the time Roosevelt took office until he left something that this book does for the first time Greater emphasis needs to be placed on creating a more complete picture of Teddy Roosevelt and China relations especially in regard to his and his advisers perceptual framework of that region and its impact upon the making of China policy The goal of this study is to begin that process Special attention is paid to the question of how Roosevelt and the members of his administration viewed China as it is believed that their viewpoints which were prejudicial were very instrumental in how they chose to deal with China and the question of the Open Door The emphasis on the role of stereotyping gives the book a particularly unique point of view Readers will be made aware of the difficulties of making foreign policy under challenging conditions but also of how the attitudes and perceptions of policymakers can shape the direction that those policies can take A critical argument of the book is that a stereotyped perception of China and its people inhibited American policy responses toward the Chinese state in Roosevelt's Administration While Roosevelt's attitudes regarding white supremacy have been discussed elsewhere a fuller consideration of how his views affected the making of foreign policy particularly China policy is needed especially now that Sino American relations today are of great concern colleges with diverse programs Yeh provides a typology of Chinese institutions of higher learning in the Republican period and detailed studies of representative universities She also describes student life and prominent academic personalities in various seats of higher learning Social changes and the political ferment outside the academy affected students and faculty alike giving rise as Yeh contends to a sense of alienation on the eve of war Empires at War Francis Pike, 2011-02-28 As the major geopolitical power bloc Asia with 4 billion people two thirds of the world's population a huge land mass and the fastest growing economies has shifted the global political balance Empires at War gives a dramatic narrative account of how Modern Asia came into being Ranging over the whole of Asia from Japan to Pakistan the modern history of this important region is placed in the context of the struggle between America and the Soviet Union Francis Pike shows that America's domination of post war Asia was a continuation of a 100 year competition for power in the region He also argues cogently that contrary to the largely Western centric viewpoint Asian nations were not simply the passive and biddable entities of the superpowers but had a political development which was both separate and unique with a dynamic that was largely independent of the superpower conflict And in conclusion the book traces the unwinding of American influence and the end of its Empire a crucial development in international history which is already having repercussions throughout the world
