Markets Class And Social Change Trading Networks And Poverty In Rural South Asia:

Markets, Class and Social Change B. Crow, 2001-10-10 At the beginning of the twenty first century an idealized view of markets informs government policy Real differences in how markets interact with social change are obscured and public action on poverty is constrained Markets Class and Social Change uses a detailed study of the grain trade in Bangladesh to show how socially constrained patterns of market involvement may systematically benefit the rich while disadvantaging the poor More generally the book suggests that markets are implicated in the making of society its divisions identities and directions

Marx in the Field Alessandra Mezzadri, 2021-02-15 Marx in the Field is a unique edited collection illustrating the relevance of the Marxian method to study contemporary capitalism and the global development process Essays in the collection bring Marx to the field in three ways They illustrate how Marxian categories can be concretely deployed for field research in the global economy they analyse how these categories may be adapted during fieldwork and they discuss data collection methods supporting Marxian analysis Crucially many of the contributions expand the scope of Marxian analysis by combining its insights with those of other intellectual traditions including radical feminisms critical realism and postcolonial studies The book defines the possibilities and challenges of fieldwork guided by Marxian analysis including those emerging from the COVID 19 pandemic The collection takes a global approach to the study of development and of contemporary capitalism While some essays focus on themes and geographical areas of long term concern for international development like informal or rural poverty and work across South Asia Southern and West Africa or South America others focus instead on actors benefitting from the development process like regional exporters larger farmers and traders or on unequal socio economic outcomes across richer and emerging economies and regions including Gulf countries North America Southern Europe or Post Soviet Central and Eastern Europe Some essays explore global processes cutting across the world economy connecting multiple regions actors and inequalities While some of the contributions focus on classic Marxian tropes in the study of contemporary capitalism like class labour and working conditions agrarian change or global commodity chains and prices others aim at demonstrating the relevance of the Marxian method beyond its traditional boundaries for instance for exploring the interplays between food nutrition and poverty the links between social reproduction gender and homework the features of migration and refugees regimes tribal chieftaincy structures or prison labour or the dynamics structuring global surrogacy Overall through the analysis of an extremely varied set of concrete settings and cases this book illustrates the extraordinary insights we can gain by bringing Marx in the field

Aquaculture, employment, poverty, food security and well-being in Bangladesh Belton, B., Ahmed, N., Murshed-e-Jahan, K., 2015-01-14 This study addresses five research questions about the nature of aquaculture development in Bangladesh The questions are designed to test central narratives from the literature on aquaculture poverty and food security and to broaden the scope of debate beyond them An integrated quantitative qualitative survey was conducted in six communities with contrasting patterns of aquaculture development Data was collected from a representative cross section of village residents to gain insights into the impacts of aquaculture development at the local level using a structured household survey 578 respondents and in depth interviews 165 informants This approach generated many findings that contradict or add nuance to conventional understandings of aquaculture development This study represents the most complete attempt to date to analyze the multidimensional relationships among aquaculture development poverty and food security in Bangladesh It also attempts to broaden analysis beyond these conventional indicators to address subjective and relational dimensions of well being

The Political Ecology of Climate Change Adaptation Marcus Taylor, 2014-11-17 This book provides the first systematic critique of the concept of climate change adaptation within the field of international development Drawing on a reworked political ecology framework it argues that climate is not something out there that we adapt to Instead it is part of the social and biophysical forces through which our lived environments are actively yet unevenly produced From this original foundation the book challenges us to rethink the concepts of climate change vulnerability resilience and adaptive capacity in transformed ways With case studies drawn from Pakistan India and Mongolia it demonstrates concretely how climatic change emerges as a dynamic force in the ongoing transformation of contested rural landscapes In crafting this synthesis the book recalibrates the frameworks we use to envisage climatic change in the context of contemporary debates over development livelihoods and poverty With its unique theoretical contribution and case study material this book will appeal to researchers and students in environmental studies sociology geography politics and development studies

Microfinance, Debt and Over-Indebtedness Isabelle Guérin, Solène Morvant-Roux, Magdalena Villarreal, 2013-10-15 Although microcredit programmes have long been considered efficient development tools many forms of debt induced distress have emerged in their wake This has brought to light the problem of over indebtedness a topic which has been previously underexplored in the literature This new book from a group of leading scholars explores the manifestations scale and economic and social implications of household over indebtedness in areas conventionally considered as financially excluded The book approaches debt not only as a financial transaction but also as a form of social bond and offers a socioeconomic analysis of over indebtedness The volume puts forward a broad definition of over indebtedness highlighting its situational and semantic complexity and diversity It provides a close analysis of local conceptions of debt and over indebtedness highlighting frameworks of calculation and the constant renegotiation of their boundaries On top of this it looks far beyond microcredit to examine all the financial practices that individuals juggle The volume argues that over indebtedness has more to do with social inequalities than financial illiteracy and should therefore be understood in the light of global trends of financialization It also reveals the ambiguity of financial inclusion policies and in many respects questions the actions of new credit providers This book will be valuable reading for students researchers and policy makers interested in microfinance and development issues

Transforming the Rural Nonfarm Economy
 Steven Haggblade, Peter B. R. Hazell, Thomas Reardon, 2007-11-16 Contrary to conventional wisdom that equates rural economies with agriculture rural residents in developing countries often rely heavily on activities other than farming for their income Indeed nonfarm work accounts for between one third and one half of rural incomes in the developing world In recent years accelerating globalization increasing competition from large businesses expanding urban markets for rural goods and services and greater availability of information and communication technology have combined to expose rural nonfarm businesses to new opportunities as well as new risks By examining these rapid changes in the rural nonfarm economy international experts explore how the rural nonfarm economy can contribute to overall economic growth in developing countries and how the poor can participate in this rapidly evolving segment of the economy The authors review an array of recent studies of the rural nonfarm economy in order to summarize existing empirical evidence explore policy implications and identify future research priorities They examine the varied scale structure and composition of the rural nonfarm economy as well as its relationship with agricultural and urban enterprises And they address key questions about the role of public intervention in the rural nonfarm economy and how the rural poor can participate in and navigate the rapid transition underway in rural areas The contributors offer new insights to specialists in rural development and to others interested in overall economic development
