Cooperative and Networking Strategies in Small Business Marta Peris-Ortiz, João J. Ferreira, 2016-11-03 The book aims to collect the most recent research and best practices in the cooperative and networking small business field identifying new theoretical models and describing the relationship between cooperation and networks in the small business strategy context It examines different concepts and analytical techniques better understand the links between cooperative strategies and networks in small business It also studies the existing economic conditions of network and strategic implications to small business from the point of view of their internal and external consistency Cooperation and networks is a fashionable topic It is receiving increasing attention in popular management publications as well as specialized academic journals Cooperation between firms and industries is a means of leveraging and aggregating knowledge also generating direct benefits in terms of innovation productivity and competitiveness. Various options and decisions made within the framework of strategic alliances may be identified and differentiated. For example, it has been argued that R D cooperation between competing firms also facilitates the search for incremental efficiency gains and is thus a competitive advantage. In parallel with a theoretical acceptance of the importance of a sustained competitive advantage to formulate strategy, there is a growing understanding that cooperative and networking behavior among small firms is at the root of many success stories in today's small business management. This condition requires an effort to develop a study of both aspects of cooperation and networks as compatible complementary facets of a unique reality. In short, the cooperative and networking relationships of a small business can be the source of its competitive advantage. Enhancement of local resources and capabilities for the generation and dissemination of knowledge is still an issue for defining public policies in many countries. Featuring contributions covering such topics as green innovation, social commerce, university cooperation networks, and regional entrepreneurship, this book provides a comprehensive and richly illustrated study of cooperation and networks in small business that will be pertinent to students, academics, professionals, scholars, and policy makers.

div Networks as Connected Contracts Gunther Teubner, 2011-05-27 Business networks consist of several independent businesses that enter into interrelated contracts conferring on the parties many of the benefits of co ordination achieved through vertical integration in a single firm without creating a single integrated business such as a corporation or partnership. Retail franchises are one such example of a network but the most common instance is a credit card transaction between a customer, retailer, and the issuer of the card. How should the law analyse this hybrid economic phenomenon? It is neither exactly a market relationship because that overlooks the co ordination, relational qualities, and interdependence of the contracts, nor is it a type of business association or company since it lacks a centralised co ordinating authority that receives the residual profits. This book is a translation of Gunther Teubner's classic work on networks setting out his novel legal concept of connected contracts. In it, he explains how this concept addresses the problems posed by networks such as the question whether the network as a whole can be held legally responsible for damage that it causes to third parties such as customers. A substantial introduction by Hugh Collins explains the analysis of networks in the context of German law and the systems theory from which Teubner approaches the topic. The introduction also explores how far the concept of connected contracts might assist in the common law world, including the UK and the USA, to address the same problems that arise in cases involving networks. As well as making a contribution to comparative law and legal theory, the book will be of interest to scholars interested in contract law, commercial law, and the law of business associations.
