Sussman, Suzanne K. Steinmetz, Gary W. Peterson, 2013-06-29 To know where we are going as scholars educators and practitioners in the field of marriage and family life we first need to know where we have been A perusal of early texts on marriage and family life provides some thought provoking insights into the accuracy of the saying what goes around comes around It is interesting to note who has been considered to be in a position to provide information on marriage and family life Included in the eclectic collection of texts we reviewed were ministers whose focus was on spirituality doctors who emphasized medical aspects of child and adult health and public health professionals and home economists concerned with fighting disease who emphasized cleanliness order fighting germs and eliminating rodents and insects There are also philosophers who drew from ancient texts when discussing family life and a count who assembled a group of German intellectual elites to address various topics An insightful essay of this type is by Marta Karlweis 1926 in which she notes There is no other fetish that society holds to so firmly as the conception woman with all its usual associations of infantilism and dependence The child requires protection is a minor and consequently a serf but above all it possesses no spiritual existence Neither doctorates or other distinctions nor the right to vote have as yet been able to dispel this sweet idea of the childishness of woman which man cherishes p The Mental Health Desk Reference Elizabeth Reynolds Welfel, R. Beutler, Karen M. Simon, 2013-06-29 In reviewing the Contents of this Handbook edited by Freeman Simon Beutler and Arkowitz I am both impressed and gratified with the enormous strides made by cognitive behavior therapy since the late 1960s A perusal of the Contents reveals that it is used with adults children couples and families it is clinically appropriate for such problems as anxiety depression sexual dysfunctions and addictions and it is employed in conjunction with psychopharmacological and other psychotherapeutic interventions It was in the mid 1960s when Breger and McGaugh published an article in the Psychological Bulletin taking behavior therapists to task for using only classical and operant principles in devising their therapeutic interventions Breger and McGaugh argued that the field of learning was undergoing a major revolution paying considerably more attention to cognitive processes than had previously been the case In short they criticized the growing behavioral orientation for being limited in its exclusively peripheralistic orientation At the time behavior therapists were initially somewhat resistant to any allusion to cognitive metaphors Indeed my own initial reactions to the Breger and McGaugh article was quite negative Yet in rereading their critique many of their suggestions now seem most appealing No doubt I and my behavior colleagues lacked the appropriate cognitive set for incorporating such contradictory information Nonetheless the clinical evidence for the relevance of cognitive factors in the behavior change process was simply too compelling to ignore
