Lopez,2011-05-04 This series of volumes represents a comprehensive and integrated treatment of reproduction in vertebrates from fishes of all sorts through mammals It is designed to provide a readable coordinated description of reproductive basics in each group of vertebrates as well as an introduction to the latest trends in reproductive research and our understanding of reproductive events Whereas each chapter and each volume is intended to stand alone as a review of that topic or vertebrate group respectively the volumes are prepared so as to provide a thorough topical treatment across the vertebrates Terminology has been standardized across the volumes to reduce confusion where multiple names exist in the literature and a comprehensive glossary of these terms and their alternative names is provided A complete essential and up to date reference for research scientists working on vertebrate hormones and reproduction and on animals as models in human reproductive research Covers the endocrinology neuroendocrinology physiology behaviour and anatomy of vertebrate reproduction Structured coverage of the major themes for all five vertebrate groups allows a consistent treatment for all Special chapters elaborate on features specific to individual vertebrate groups and to comparative aspects similarities and differences between them Hearing — the Brain and Auditory Communication in Marsupials Lindsay Aitkin, 2012-12-06 This monograph evolved from years of research into the auditory pathway and hearing of many species of marsupials Its function is to give biologists in particular neurobiologists a broad description and review of what is known of the auditory sensory capacities and processing mechanisms in this large order of mammals My initial interest in marsupials developed from collaborative work with Dr Richard Gates at Monash and Melbourne Universities in the 1970s and by curiosity as to whether concepts about the auditory system was stimulated stemming from experiments mainly on domestic cats could be extended to mammals of other orders My subsequent interest in Australian marsupials aroused by collaboration with Dr John Nelson at Monash University in the 1980s and 1990s concerned their auditory systems and behavior per se and not as primitive cousins of eutherians More recently I have collaborated with Dr Bruce Masterton at Florida State University in studies of New World marsupials His sad death in 1996 has robbed neurobiologists of one of our most provocative thinkers and hypothesis testers I would like to thank the Department of Physiology at Monash University for making many facilities available to me the National Health and Medical Research of Australia and the Australian Research Council for providing funds for Council research and Jill Poynton and Michelle Mulholland who illustrated this volume
