brings into conversation the two most popular genres in long eighteenth century England portraits and biographies As key instruments of social formation when Britain was forging the nation Linda Colley they were wielded alike by Whigs and Tories the aristocracy and the commercial middle classes high class artists and grub street writers They were most persuasive however when used jointly portrait prints ideally accompanied by Brief Lives sold by the thousands National histories were re issued to include pictures Portraitists were required to stage their sitters as though taken from real life situations Embedded into such interplay between texts and images was an aesthetic claim doing biography was a multimedia enterprise Far from being just words on a page eighteenth century life writing came with frontispiece portraits illustrations or elaborate title pages Biographers directed their readers to existing portraits of their subjects to enhance the reading experience Portraits made of calligraphic writing blurred the boundaries between text and image As a thorough reassessment of visual culture's role in producing biographies this book offers an in depth analysis of the rhetorics of portraiture and life writing an historical account of their sister arts tradition and an inquiry into the social function of profiling people Britannica Book of the Year ,2000 Historical Abstracts ,1997
