Question Of Color:

What Is Color? Arielle Eckstut, Joann Eckstut, 2020-04-28 A comprehensive illustrated exploration of the fascinating science of color Arielle and Joann Eckstut authors of The Secret Language of Color offer a thorough readable and highly visual exploration of the science of color Organized by 50 of the most essential questions about color across a variety of fields physics chemistry biology technology and psychology this book examines how and why we see color how color relates to light what the real primary colors are how biology language and culture affect the colors that we see and much more Full of clear and elegant infographics What Is Color is a must have for artists and designers scientists students and decorators and anyone else whose work or play involves color

Asking Questions Robert Fiengo, 2007-05-03 Asking Questions examines a central phenomenon of language the use of sentences to ask questions Although there is a sizable literature on the syntax and semantics of interrogatives the logic of questions and the speech act of questioning no one has tried to put the syntax and semantics together with the speech acts over the full range of phenomena we pretheoretically think of as asking questions Robert Fiengo not only does this but also takes up some more foundational issues in the theory of language By positioning the findings of contemporary grammatical theorizing within the larger domain of language use Fiengo challenges the use theorist to acknowledge the importance of grammatical form and the grammarian to acknowledge the importance of use In addition to developing an Austinian distinction between four questioning speech acts and a proposal concerning the philosophy of language Asking Questions contains a useful discussion of the type token distinction and how use of language compares with use of other things Fiengo also considers the nature of multiple questions revealing what one must know to ask them and what speech acts one may perform when asking them Asking Questions advances our understanding of a wide range of issues in a number of important respects Scholars and students of linguistics and philosophy will find plenty to interest them in this pioneering work

Words and the Mind Barbara Malt, Phillip Wolff, 2010-03 The study of word meanings promises important insights into the nature of the human mind by revealing what people find to be most cognitively significant in their experience However as we learn more about the semantics of various languages we are faced with an interesting problem Different languages seem to be telling us different stories about the mind For example important distinctions made in one language are not necessarily made in others What are we to make of these cross linguistic differences How do they arise Are they created by purely linguistic processes operating over the course of language evolution Or do they reflect fundamental differences in thought In this sea of differences are there any semantic universals Which categories might be given by the genes which by culture and which by language And what might the cross linguistic similarities and differences contribute to our understanding of conceptual and linguistic development The kinds of mapping principles/structures and processes that link language and non linguistic knowledge must accommodate not just one language but the rich diversity that has been uncovered The integration of knowledge and methodologies necessary for real progress in answering these questions has happened only recently as experimental approaches have been applied to the cross linguistic study of word meaning In Words and the Mind Barbara Malt and Phillip Wolff present evidence from the leading researchers who are carrying out this empirical work on topics as diverse as spatial relations events emotion terms motion events objects body part terms causation color categories and relational categories By bringing them together Malt and Wolff highlight some of the most exciting cross linguistic and cross cultural work on the language thought interface from a broad array of fields including linguistics anthropology cognitive and developmental psychology and cognitive neuropsychology Their results provide some answers to these questions and new perspectives on the issues surrounding them
