The New Reform Judaism Dana Evan Kaplan, 2020-04-01 This is the book that American Jews and particularly American Reform Jews have been waiting for a clear and informed call for further reform in the Reform movement In light of profound demographic social and technological developments it has become increasingly clear that the Reform movement will need to make major changes to meet the needs of a quickly evolving American Jewish population Younger Americans in particular differ from previous generations in how they relate to organized religion often preferring to network through virtual groups or gather in informal settings of their own choosing Dana Evan Kaplan an American Reform Jew and pulpit rabbi argues that rather than focusing on the importance of loyalty to community Reform Judaism must determine how to engage the individual in a search for existential meaning It should move us toward a critical scholarly understanding of the Hebrew Bible that we may emerge with the perspectives required by a postmodern world Such a Reform Judaism can at once help us understand how the ancient world molded our most cherished religious traditions and guide us in addressing the increasingly complex social problems of our day

Homolka, 2006-07-18 From a Jewish perspective divine action in this world revolves around two poles Hesed and Tzedakah There is one fundamental difference between them Hesed describes those actions of God that arise not from obligation but instead are spurred by pure love for humankind by grace and mercy Tzedakah by contrast touches on God's righteous interaction within his covenant as well as justice observed by man seeking harmony with God's will Each of the terms applies to both God and man Hesed and Tzedakah emanate from God and eventually should transform a person into a Hasid and a Tzaddik The authors of this volume parse the subtlety of different meanings behind this pair of terms from Bible to modernity
