Questions H. Hiz,2012-12-06 To the philosopher the logician and the linguist questions have a special fascination The two main views of language that it describes the world and that it expresses thought are not directly applicable to questions Questions are not assertions A question may be apt sharp to the point important or it may be inappropriate ambiguous awkward irrelevant or irreverent But it cannot be true or false It does not have a truth value not just because an utterance like Was the letter long does not indicate which letter is being talked about The indicative The letter was not long has the same indeterminacy In actual context the anaphoric definite article will be resolved both for a question and for an indicative sentence Contextual resolutions are easily found for most cross references A question cannot be either true or it does not describe a state of affairs Neither does it express false because thought because it is an expression of suspended thought of lack of judgment To dress it in other philosophical styles a question is not a judgment it is not a proposition it is not an assertion A philosopher may try to paraphrase a question as an indicative sentence for instance as a statement of ignorance or as a statement of the desire to know Hintikka Wachowicz and Lang explore this territory Or he may interpret it as a meta statement intimating the direction in which the flow of the discourse is going

CRACK99: The Takedown of a $100 Million Chinese Software Pirate David Locke Hall,2015-10-19 The utterly gripping story of the most outrageous case of cyber piracy prosecuted by the U S Department of Justice A former U S Navy intelligence officer David Locke Hall was a federal prosecutor when a bizarre sounding website CRACK99 came to his attention It looked like Craigslist on acid but what it sold was anything but amateurish thousands of high tech software products used largely by the military and for mere pennies on the dollar Want to purchase satellite tracking software No problem Aerospace and aviation simulations No problem Communications systems designs No problem Software for Marine One the presidential helicopter No problem With delivery times and customer service to rival the world's most successful e tailers anybody anywhere including rogue regimes terrorists and countries forbidden from doing business with the United States had access to these goods for any purpose whatsoever But who was behind CRACK99 and where were they The Justice Department discouraged potentially costly risky cases like this preferring the low hanging fruit that scored points from politicians and the public But Hall and his colleagues were determined to find the culprit They bought CRACK99 s products for delivery in the United States buying more and more to appeal to the budding entrepreneur in the man they identified as Xiang Li After winning his confidence they lured him to Saipan a U S commonwealth territory where Hall s own father had stormed the beaches with the marines during World War II There they set up an audacious sting that culminated in Xiang Li s capture and imprisonment The value of the goods offered by CRACK99 A cool 100 million An eye opening look at cybercrime and its chilling consequences for national security CRACK99 reads like a caper that resonates with every amazing detail

develop standards by which they can assess their individual performances in a larger context and Assessing Reference and User Services in a Digital Age makes significant contributions to this ongoing discussion. The book addresses its subject matter via approaches ranging from case studies of individual libraries to general discussions of best practices. The contributors explore the impact of the Internet on the field of evaluation focusing on electronic reference and instruction. They highlight current issues, present research results, and offer expert advice on how to assess online reference and instruction. All chapters are well referenced to facilitate further study, and many include tables, appendixes, checklists, and other helpful features that make difficult information easy to access and understand. The chapters that make up Assessing Reference and User Services in a Digital Age are as rich and varied as the backgrounds of their authors. Experienced researchers provide the results of studies conducted to determine the nature and effectiveness of the online reference services offered by various libraries. Practitioners and administrators from different institutional settings—academic libraries, public libraries, consortiums, etc.—provide their perspectives on the issues facing librarians who need to assess the electronic services they provide. In this important new book, Andrew Briedenbach shows how a chat service can be implemented and suggests which data should be collected for it. Buff Hirko examines VET, the Virtual Evaluation Toolkit. Ruth Vondracek shares the experiences of a university library as it entered a statewide e-reference consortium and offers advice and issues to consider before entering such a partnership. Librarians from San Jose State University present a model for evaluating electronic reference services that can be used in public or academic libraries. Kathleen Kern discusses holistic evaluation; chat transcripts are addressed in several chapters, including Joseph Fennewald's comparisons of question categories. Lesley Moyo's analysis of the use of instruction in the virtual environment and Caleb Tucker Raymond's proposed set of quality measures for chat reference. Laurie Probst and Michael Pelikan report on the use of a Tell Us What You Think button to gather user feedback. Kristi Nelson and Catherine L. Ross examine a research study that asked library school students to submit a reference question online and report on their experiences. Melissa Gross, Charles McClure, and R. David Lankes suggest measures to determine the cost and benefits of a virtual reference service. Librarians from Utah State University describe the development of their online instructional module. Assessing Reference and User Services in a Digital Age is designed as essential reading for library administrators, public service librarians, and researchers. It provides general advice for practitioners as well as an examination of research results and methodological issues. We urge you to consider making it part of your professional or teaching collection today.

Question Answering for the Curated Web Rishiraj Saha Roy, Avishek Anand, 2022-05-31. Question answering (QA) systems on the Web try to provide crisp answers to information needs posed in natural language, replacing the traditional ranked list of documents. QA, posing a multitude of research challenges, has emerged as one of the most actively investigated topics in information retrieval, natural language processing, and the artificial intelligence communities today. The flip side of such diverse and active interest is that publications are highly fragmented.

across several venues in the above communities making it very difficult for new entrants to the field to get a good overview of the topic Through this book we make an attempt towards mitigating the above problem by providing an overview of the state of the art in question answering We cover the twin paradigms of curated Web sources used in QA tasks trusted text collections like Wikipedia and objective information distilled into large scale knowledge bases We discuss distinct methodologies that have been applied to solve the QA problem in both these paradigms using instantiations of recent systems for illustration We begin with an overview of the problem setup and evaluation cover notable sub topics like open domain multi hop and conversational QA in depth and conclude with key insights and emerging topics We believe that this resource is a valuable contribution towards a unified view on QA helping graduate students and researchers planning to work on this topic in the near future
