Research On The African American Family A Holistic Perspective:

Research on the African-American Family Robert B. Hill, 1993-03-05 Black families in America face special and grave problems Widespread unemployment single parent circumstances adolescent pregnancies substance abuse and violence are only some of the problems posing challenges The authors convinced that the conventional perspective used in the past to analyze black families is deficient propose a holistic approach That perspective takes into account the totality of black family life rather than measuring isolated factors Using black families as the central unit of analysis the authors identify fundamental issues requiring concentrated attention and policy changes Both factors external to the black family and consideration internal to it are studied The former include economic factors racism demographics and governmental policies The latter involve such aspects as black family structure changes in the community and widespread changes in values at the individual level The authors provide practical recommendations for improving the conditions of black families through policy changes and revised priorities African American Family Life Vonnie C. McLoyd, Nancy E. Hill, Kenneth A.

Dodge, 2005-09-26 This volume brings together leading experts from different disciplines to offer new perspectives on contemporary African American families A wealth of knowledge is presented on the heterogeneity of Black family life today the challenges and opportunities facing parents children and communities and the impact on health and development of key cultural and social processes Comprehensive and authoritative the book critically evaluates current policies and service delivery models and sets forth cogent recommendations for supporting families strengths Following an overview that traces the ongoing evolution of theory and research in the field the book examines how African American families fare on numerous indicators of well being Throughout contributors identify factors that promote or hinder healthy child and family development writing from a culturally sensitive nonpathologizing stance The concluding chapter provides an up to date framework for culturally competent mental health practice The Strengths of African American Families Robert B.

Hill, 1999-01-14 Returning to his innovative work of twenty five years ago Robert Hill once more offers an incisive analysis of five key cultural strengths of African American families With compassion and eloquence he argues that these existing strengths provide a solid foundation upon which to develop the kind of public policies and self help initiatives that will truly promote the interests not only of the African American community but of our diverse nation as a whole African American Behavior in the Social Environment J. Camille Hall, Stan L. Bowie, 2013-10-18 An essential text to help to understand human behavior and the processes that guide human adaptation Social workers and therapists need to assess the full range of aspects of their client problems such as socioeconomic status academic achievement parental incarceration psychopathology and other risks African American Behavior in the Social Environment New Perspectives explores the latest empirical and theoretical findings of human behavior and resiliency in African American individuals families and communities Leading scholars provide unique insights into African American mental health gender relations family interactions and dynamics inequality poverty the balance between work and family and nontraditional families This important text discusses in detail the importance of understanding the processes that guide human adaptation and understanding the dynamics of how particular ethnic groups cultures and people use resources to adapt to certain circumstances that can be useful in assessment and treatment African American Behavior in the Social Environment New Perspectives presents the analysis and research of several individuals in order to provide an understanding of how the concept of protective factors racial identity and racial socialization has been approached the direction their insights have taken them and the results of exploring the dynamics of African American behavior in relationship to environments Research discussed in African American Behavior in the Social Environment New Perspectives include socioeconomic status health disparity the impact of having incarcerated parents academic achievement gap kinship ties leadership development race identity and socialization suicide among African American adolescents Black churches impact in HIV AIDS prevention culturally relevant mental health services gender and sexuality issues policy and practice and much more African American Behavior in the Social Environment New Perspectives is an invaluable resource for counselors marriage and family therapists educators and students in African American studies

Impacts of Incarceration on the African American Family Othello Harris, Robin Miller, 2018-05-04 The criminal justice system has driven a wedge between black men and their children African American men are involved in the criminal justice system whether through incarceration probation or parole at near epidemic levels At the same time the criminal justice system has made little or no institutional efforts to maintain or support continuing relationships between these men and their families Consequently African American families are harmed by this in countless ways from the psychological physical and material suffering experienced by the men themselves to losses felt by their mates children and extended family members The volume opens with an introduction and brief review by R Robin Miller Sandra Lee Browning and Lisa M Spruance outlining the impacts of incarceration on the African American family Brad Tripp explores changes in family relationships and the identity of incarcerated African American fathers Mary Balthazar and Lula King discuss the loss of the protective effect of marital and nonmarital relationships and its impact on incarcerated African American men and the implications for African American men and those who work with them in the helping professions Theresa Clark explores the relationship between visits by family and friends and the nature of inmate behavior In a research note Olga Grinstead Bonnie Faigeles Carrie Bancroft and Barry Zack investigate the actual costs families incur to maintain contact with family members be it emotional social or financial Patricia E O Connor uses data from sociolinguistic interviews of male inmates from a maximum security prison to study how some of these men manage to continue to fulfill the fatherhood role long distance In a concluding chapter Sandra Lee Browning Robin Miller and Lisa Spruance focus on actions of the criminal justice system that undermine the black family on reasons that black male inmate fathers are studied so rarely and discuss the role restorative justice may play This insightful volume fills a void in the literature on the role of African American men in the functioning of families It will be of interest to students of African American studies social workers and policy makers
