Histories of the Middle East Roxani Eleni Margariti,Adam Sabra,Petra Sijpesteijn,2010-12-20 Dedicated to their teacher Abraham L Udovitch his students offer in this volume a chronologically geographically and thematically wide range of papers united by an emphasis on a close reading of primary sources and the juxtaposition of different genres of narratives An Economic Philosophy of Production, Work and Consumption Rodney Edvinsson,2022-08-01 An Economic Philosophy of Production Work and Consumption presents a new transhistorical framework of defining production work and consumption It shows that they all share the common feature of intentional physical transformation of something external to the agent at some point in time The book opens with a discussion of various theoretical traditions within economics spanning mainstream and heterodox perspectives and problems with production definitions in use today Next the author outlines various definitions in a more formal manner and provides a discussion on measurement and the production boundary Unproductive work is redefined as socially reproductive i e such that would not be performed on a Robinson Crusoe Island Finally the volume applies the new conceptual framework to various historical cases and discusses the future of production work and consumption This essential volume will be of interest to scholars of economic philosophy and methodology the history of economic thought economic history and national accounting The Open Access version of this book available at www.taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4 0 license Gender and Archaeology Rita Wright,1996-10 Gender and Archaeology challenges archaeologists to draw on wider feminist discourses in their interpretations of past societies and also challenges feminist scholars in other disciplines to consider new engendered approaches to archaeology The Wintu & Their Neighbors Christopher K. Chase-Dunn,Kelly Marie Mann,1998-10 On the cutting edge of world systems theory comes The Wintu and Their Neighbors the first case study to compare and contrast systematically an indigenous Native American society with the modern world at large Using an interdisciplinary approach that combines sociology anthropology political science geography and history Christopher Chase Dunn and Kelly M Mann have scoured the archaeological record of the Wintu an aboriginal people without agriculture metallurgy or class structure who lived in the wooded valleys and hills of northern California By studying the household composition kinship and trade relations of the Wintu they call into question some of the basic assumptions of prior sociological theory and analysis Chase Dunn and Mann argue that Immanuel Wallerstein's world systems perspective originally applied only to the study of modern capitalistic societies can also be applied to the study of the social economic and political relationships in small stateless societies They contend that despite the fact that the Wintu appear on the surface to have been a household based society this indigenous group was in fact involved in a myriad of networks of interaction which resulted in intermarriage and which extended for many miles around the region These networks which were not based on the economic dominance of one society over another a concept fundamental to Wallerstein's world systems theory led to the eventual expansion of the Wintu as a cultural group Thus despite the fact that the Wintu did not behave like a modern society lacking wealth accumulation class distinctions and cultural dominance Chase Dunn and Mann insist that the Wintu were involved in a world system and argue therefore that the concept of the minisystem should be discarded They urge other scholars to employ this comparative world systems perspective in their research on stateless societies no markets and do not command any price in the conventional economic system so their loss is often not detected and continues unaddressed and unabated This in turn not only impacts human well being but also seriously undermines the sustainability of the economic system It is against this background that TEEB The Economics of Ecosystems and Biodiversity project was set up in 2007 and led by the United Nations Environment Programme to provide a comprehensive global assessment of economic aspects of these issues This book written by a team of international experts represents the scientific state of the art providing a comprehensive assessment of the fundamental ecological and economic principles of measuring and valuing ecosystem services and biodiversity and showing how these can be mainstreamed into public policies This volume and subsequent TEEB outputs will provide the authoritative knowledge and guidance to drive forward the biodiversity conservation agenda for the next decade Social Change Christopher Chase-Dunn, Bruce Lerro, 2016-01-08
