Man Who Saw Through Time Francis Bacon And The Modern Dilemma:

The Man who Saw Through Time Loren C. Eiseley, 1973 William Stimpson and the Golden Age of American Natural History Ronald Scott Vasile, 2018-06-19 William Stimpson was at the forefront of the American natural history community in the latter half of the nineteenth century Stimpson displayed an early affinity for the sea and natural history and after completing an apprenticeship with famed naturalist Louis Agassiz he became one of the first professionally trained naturalists in the United States In 1852 twenty year old Stimpson was appointed naturalist of the United States North Pacific Exploring Expedition where he collected and classified hundreds of marine animals Upon his return he joined renowned naturalist Spencer F Baird at the Smithsonian Institution to create its department of invertebrate zoology He also founded and led the irreverent and fun loving Megatherium Club which included many notable naturalists In 1865 Stimpson focused on turning the Chicago Academy of Sciences into one of the largest and most important museums in the country Tragically the museum was destroyed in the Great Chicago Fire of 1871 and Stimpson died of tuberculosis soon after before he could restore his scientific legacy This first ever biography of William Stimpson situates his work in the context of his time As one of few to collaborate with both Agassiz and Baird Stimpson's life provides insight into the men who shaped a generation of naturalists the last before intense specialization caused naturalists to give way to biologists Historians of science and general readers interested in biographies science and history will enjoy this compelling biography Francis Bacon Nieves Mathews, 1996-01-01 In 1621 Bacon fell from power as Lord Chancellor the highest position in the land Charged with accepting bribes he was convicted fined imprisoned and exiled from the Court He died five years later disgraced and deeply in debt Quest: V. Virom Coppola, 2004-03-16 The task before us in a nutshell my fellow humans is the clear and present danger of finding out who we really are That is the impossible feat I have given this poor creature V Virom and each of us with him The proof of the pasta is always in the tasting So says the author at the beginning of his book as he invites the reader on a detective story offering a beautifully written book with a rather remarkable synthesis of modern thinking one that builds from the ground of existence alone to a spirituality both secular and sacred That single paragraph on the cover of the book says what needs to be said it seems to me When I thought about this further and longer requested description of the book for the web site T S Eliot came to mind I am referring to the time when he was asked what his poem Prufrock was about and kindly replied Read the poem I do think he made a valid point because asking for a description of a book is the same when you think about it Shouldnt a person rather be reading the book itself At the same time I certainly can understand a person wanting to get a feel for the book before purchasing it and since you dont have the book to handle and page through to do that which I myself always do to see if there is going to be a love affair between the book and me I will give the viewer some of the Overture at the beginning of my book as an overture here as well hopefully to help accomplish the tangential absence Call it virtual foreplay if you want First Review From the Free Venice Beachhead News June 2004 Book Review

QUEST A SEARCH FOR A SOUL MODERNKIND by Vincent Coppola Reviewed by Steve Goldman a former editor for Encyclopedia Britannica With great passion yet without a scintilla of mawkish sentimentality Coppola here makes the strong compelling case for love as the direct and primary implication of human consciousness That would be laudable by itself but these are not merely the pleasant musings of a decent well intentioned person This is and it is astounding tightly reasoned philosophy based on acute astute observation and profound and powerful argument Building on Descartes whom he explicitly reverses on the fundamental matter of proof of personal experience and Kant who seems indispensable to all who came after Coppola emerges with a distinctive and compassionate American existentialism that is unlike anything heretofore With strongly grounded links to modern cosmology evolutionary theory and sheer phenomenology of consciousness in space time Coppola delivers a ringing statement of free will so sorely needed in this era of burgeoning biological reductionist determinism This in turn yields a ringing adduction of the ontological primacy of self with commensurately devastating attacks on any variety of teeny bopping reductionism chemical biological physical or psychological and as well on any religious philosophical tradition usually Asian which explicitly denies or tries to eradicate the self I myself exist and I can love is the rigorously derived powerfully demonstrated theorem which is the first principal here What is more the revolutionary optional theology Quest proposes seems to at last settle that huge and perennial question for contemporary times Additionally and astonishingly and with philosophical deftness and gracious style Coppolas secular Christology evinces sacred humanitarian values again so needed in this era Coppola is a highly trained professional philosopher a prodigiously well read and deeply thoughtful theorist and analyst whose similarity to the preponderant mentality in his field is only superficial That is because Vincent V Virom is a philosopher in the all but abandoned grand tradition
