Reason, Freedom, and Religion Lorne L. Dawson, 1988 This book argues the advantages of using an unconventional method of social science the argument from rationality to ameliorate the disruptive methodological schism which exists between humanistic and social scientific perspectives in Religionswissenschaft and the sociology of religion The argument from rationality curbs the reductive thrust of conventional scientific accounts of religion by integrating the power of human choice and religious references to the transcendent into a viable mode of explanation for social and religious action Attention is focused on the role character and limits of the judgements of rationality undergirding the practice of the social sciences

The Perception of Christianity as a Rational Religion in Singapore Clive S. Chin, 2017-03-23 This book evaluates the common criticism that Christianity in Asia is westernized Since the 1980s Asian evangelical theologians and missiologists argue that the intrusion of Western theology is responsible for the Western and hence alien expressions of Christianity in Asia Yet in Singapore the number of Christians has increased over the last few decades Empirical evidence demonstrates that younger Chinese Singaporeans convert from Buddhism or Taoism to Christianity partly because they perceive it as a rational religion over Buddhism or Taoism which are viewed as irrational or superstitious Not only do many converts favor Christianity as a rational religion but they do not regard Christianity as a Western religion at the point of their conversion What accounts for those recent developments This study explores the processes of modernization and globalization as important factors impacting religious change in Singapore Personal contextual and structural elements actually influence one's religion of choice In facilitating effective mission one must qualify the use of the categories Asian and Western because religious and cultural boundaries overlap What matters most in missiology is discerning how the gospel of Jesus Christ engages the self understanding and lived realities of ethnic and religious others in diverse cultural settings between Swedes in general and the perceptions of Swedish clergy The answer is based on sociological studies on science and religion in Sweden and the United States Furthermore the book contains a study of Swedish theologians from Nathan Soderblom to the present Archbishop Antje Jackelen and their shifting understanding of the relation between science and religion The philosophical aspects of this relation are given special consideration What models of the relation inform the contemporary scholarly discussion Are science and religion in conflict separate or in mutual creative interaction

Church, Market, and Media Marcus Moberg, 2017-07-13 Marcus Moberg offers a new model of religion and religious life in the post war era through focusing on the role of markets and media as vectors of contemporary social and cultural change and therefore institutional religious change While there is wide agreement among sociologists of religion that there this area is transforming on a global scale there is less agreement about how these changes should best be approached and conceptualized In a time of accelerating institutional religious decline institutional Churches have become ever more susceptible to market associated discourse and language and are ever more compelled to adapt to the demands of the present day media environment Using discourse analysis Marcus Moberg tracks how new media and marketing language and concepts have entered Christian thinking and discourse Church Market and Media develops a framework that approaches changes in the contemporary religious field in direct relation to the changing socioeconomic makeup of contemporary societies on the whole Through focusing on the impact of markets and media within the contemporary religious setting of mainline institutional Christian churches in the Western world the book outlines new avenues for further theorizing the study of religious change contribution to sociology by Eileen Barker the editor and James T Richardson Patterns of Rationality Tommaso Bertolotti, 2015-04-29 This book proposes an applied epistemological framework for investigating science social cognition and religious thinking based on inferential patterns that recur in the different domains It presents human rationality as a tool that allows us to make sense of our physical or social surroundings It shows that the resulting cognitive activity produces a broad spectrum of outputs such as scientific models and experimentation gossip and social networks but also ancient and contemporary deities The book consists of three parts the first of which addresses scientific modeling and experimentation and their application to the analysis of scientific rationality Thus this part continues the tradition of eco cognitive epistemology and abduction studies The second part deals with the relationship between social cognition and cognitive niche construction i e the evolutionarily relevant externalization of knowledge onto the environment while the third part focuses on what is commonly defined as irrational thus being in a way dialectically opposed to the first part Here the author demonstrates that the irrational can be analyzed by applying the same epistemological approach used to study scientific rationality and social cognition also in this case we see the emergence of patterns of rationality that regulate the relationships between agents and their environment All in all the book offers a coherent and unitary account of human rationality providing a basis for new conceptual connections and theoretical speculations Sacred Markets, Sacred Canopies Ted G.
