Reading Between The Lines The Diaries Of Women:

Reading Between the Lines Betty Jane Wylie, 1995-12-01 Traces the evolution of women's diaries over the centuries looking at them in a wonderful new light It is a fascinating journey through the private lives of unknown and famous women as revealed in the pages of their journals From the seemingly unimportant but revealing details of a pioneer woman's household account to the breathless prose of an adolescent's girl she has chosen excerpts that give us vivid portraits of lives and times that have often been relegated to the margins of history Also examines the obstacles that have prevented women from writing the secret codes diarists have developed and the wide range of subjects they have covered Reading Between the Lines Betty Jane Wylie, 1995

Women's Diaries as Narrative in the Nineteenth-Century Novel Catherine Delafield, 2016-12-05 Using private diary writing as her model Catherine Delafield investigates the cultural significance of nineteenth century women's writing and reading practices Beginning with an examination of non-fictional diaries and the practice of diary writing she assesses the interaction between the fictional diary and other forms of literary production such as epistolary narrative the periodical the factual document and sensation fiction The discrepancies between the private diary and its use as a narrative device are explored through the writings of Frances Burney Elizabeth Gaskell Anne Bront Dinah Craik Wilkie Collins and Bram Stoker The ideological function of the diary Delafield suggests produces a conflict in fictional narrative between that diary's received use as a domestic and spiritual record and its authority as a life writing opportunity for women Delafield considers women as writers readers and subjects and contextualizes her analysis within nineteenth century reading practice She demonstrates ways in which women could become performers of their own story through a narrative method which was authorized by their femininity and at the same time allowed them to challenge the myth of domestic womanhood

The Write Track Betty

Jane Wylie, 2003-04 The Write Track is a personal and practical look at the author's freelance experience as she tells how she made it from uncertain early days to the growing confidence of a veteran. This guide is packed with the information a freelance writer needs to know including a writer's self evaluation, profits from brainwaves, details of the writing life and the writing business, a writer's rights and responsibilities and those important first steps into the freelance world. If you want to make a living as a freelance writer in Canada you need to read The Write Track. Woman's Way Through Unknown

Labrador Mina Hubbard, 2004 In 1905 Mina Benson Hubbard became the first white person to cross Labrador documenting her travels in the classic A Woman's Way Through Unknown Labrador. This reissue, edited and fully annotated by Sherrill Grace, makes the complete work available for the first time since the original 1908 publication and features an introduction that situates Hubbard's writing in the context of her life and times, making clear how difficult it was for a woman of her day to undertake such an expedition and to give public lectures and write about her experiences. Revealing New Worlds

Suzanne Le-May Sheffield, 2013-09-05 The story of nineteenth century science often tells a tale of a masculinized professionalizing domain. Scientific man increasingly pushed women out, marginalized them and constructed them as naturally feminine creatures incapable of intellectual work, particularly scientific work. Yet many women participated in various scientific endeavours throughout the century. This work asks why, when the waters were so inviting, did women dive deeply into the swirling maelstrom of scientific practice, scientific controversies and scientific writing. Victorian women certainly recognised that male naturalists were not always willing to welcome them warmly into their inner sanctum of scientific work, honour and prestige. Moreover, they recognised the existence of a more general social stigma that thwarted any woman's participation in intellectual endeavours. However, their fascination with algology, botany and entomology led Margaret Gatty, Marianne North and Eleanor Ormerod to reach beyond acceptable gendered roles to undertake field work, to paint, write, popularize, experiment and discover. Each exhibited a passion for their chosen field, a need for intellectual, artistic and scientific work and a desire for scientific recognition and renown. This book examines the ability of women to understand themselves and respond to their needs as complex human beings. Within a framework of socially and scientifically constructed norms, these Victorian women used science as a path to self awareness and intellectual accomplishment. The War Diary of Clare Gass

Clare Gass, 2004 The diary of a nurse who served with the Canadian Army Medical Corps in France during the First World War. Women in Scotland c.1100-c.1750 Elizabeth L. Ewan, Maureen M. Meikle, 1999-11-16 This collection of essays addresses women in Scotland in the medieval and early modern period, drawing on archival sources from Court of Session records to Middle Scots poetry. The editors argue persuasively that it is important to know about Scotswomen from all social levels. The book includes a time line and introductory bibliographical essay. The twenty essays in the collection are arranged under the themes of religion, literature, legal history, the economy, politics and the family. They demonstrate the connections between Scottish women's experience and those in England and the continent as well as highlighting what was unique for the history of Scottish women Through this comprehensive review of the feminine situation during more than six hundred years of Scottish history the reader will discover how women really lived and what they really thought whatever their place in society

Marginal Voices, Marginal Forms Rachael Langford, Russell West-Pavlov, 1999 Diaristic writing has often been relegated to the fringes of literary studies as a marginal cultural activity This volume seeks to challenge that marginality by exploring some of the wide ranging forms of literary practice encompassed by diaristic writing in Europe from the Renaissance to the present day The volume deals with questions of the value and status of the diary of the functioning of the diary in society and history and of the reception and interpretation of the multifarious forms of first person daily writing The volume investigates diaries across national borders and linguistic boundaries so as to make the hitherto marginal place of the private journal a site of fruitful interdisciplinary encounters Australian British Catalanian French German and Italian critics examine diaries dating from the sixteenth to the twentieth century within the context of the literature history and literary history of Catalonia England France Germany and Italy A prime concern of the essays in this collection is to highlight the cultural generic and historical diversity of the diary while emphasising the points of convergence between different texts and differing critical approaches to the texts The volume will be of interest to students and teachers of European and comparative literature

Members of the Regiment Michele Nacy, 2000-04-30 Many extraordinary women traveled west with their Army officer husbands between 1865 and 1890 and discovered a world that was completely controlled by the United States Army The Army as a public institution colored virtually every aspect of their domestic lives Army directives customs and traditions imposed social obligations on these women and the world of the frontier Army garrison continually challenged their sense of what it meant to be true women Remarkably they flourished and established a defined role for themselves that went beyond the conventional definition of true womanhood The shared values loyalties and patriotism within the institutional environment of the frontier garrison transcended gender As distinctly masculine as the Army garrison was perceived to be the officers wives shared with their comrades in arms an unequivocal commitment to the Regiment Because of their presence the frontier garrison became a much different place to live as they subtly and slowly changed the very nature of the institution through their efforts to bring some notion of proper society to these rugged circumstances Unlike most studies which focus only on farm and frontier women this volume details the experiences of the women who viewed the world from within garrison walls

Susanna Wesley Susanna Wesley,1997-06-26 Susanna Wesley long celebrated in Methodist mythology as mother of the movement's founders now takes place as a practical theologian in her own right This collection of her letters spiritual diary and longer treatises only one of which was published in her lifetime shows her to be more than the nurturing mother of Wesleyan legend It also reveals her to be a well educated woman in conversation with contemporary theological philosophical and literary works Her quotations and allusions include Locke Pascal and Herbert as well as a number of now forgotten theologians In some of her work one can distinguish doctrinal and spiritual leanings such as Arminianism and Christian perfection that would later find wide expression in the spread of Methodism Further her writings demonstrate her readiness for conscience's sake to stand up to the men in her life father husband and sons and the three incarnations of English Protestantism they represented respectively Puritanism the Established Church and the new Methodist movement Tracing these incidents in her letters and diaries a reader can begin to understand how spirituality even an otherwise conservative one in rather restrictive times can serve to empower the voice of women
