Reading Cavell's The World Viewed William Rothman, Marian Keane, 2000 A philosophical reexamination of Stanley Cavell's The World Viewed In their thoughtful study of one of Stanley Cavell's greatest yet most neglected books William Rothman and Marian Keane address this eminent philosopher's many readers from a variety of disciplines who have neither understood why he has given film so much attention nor grasped the place of The World Viewed within the totality of his writings about film Rothman and Keane also reintroduce The World Viewed to the field of film studies When the new field entered universities in the late 1960s it predicated its legitimacy on the conviction that the medium's artistic achievements called for serious criticism and on the corollary conviction that no existing field was capable of the criticism filmed called for The study of film needed to found itself intellectually upon a philosophical investigation of the conditions of the medium and art of film Such was the challenge The World Viewed took upon itself However film studies opted to embrace theory as a higher authority than our experiences of movies divorcing itself from the philosophical perspective of self reflection apart from which The World Viewed teaches we cannot know what movies mean or what they are Rothman and Keane now argue that the poststructuralist theories that dominated film studies for a quarter of a century no longer compel conviction Cavell's brilliant and beautiful book can provide a sense of liberation to a field that has forsaken its original calling read in a way that acknowledges its philosophical achievement The World Viewed can show the field a way to move forward by rediscovering its passion for the art of film Reading Cavell's The World Viewed will prove invaluable to scholars and students of film and philosophy and to those in other fields such as literary studies and American studies who have found Cavell's work provocative and fruitful achievement The World Viewed can show the field a way to move forward by rediscovering its passion for the art of film Reading Cavell's The World Viewed will prove invaluable to scholars and students of film and philosophy and to those in other fields such as literary studies and American studies who have found Cavell's work provocative and fruitful Movies with Stanley Cavell in Mind David LaRocca,2021-06-03 In Movies with Stanley Cavell in Mind some of the scholars who have become essential for our understanding of Stanley Cavell's writing on film gather to use his landmark contributions to help us read new films from Hollywood and elsewhere that exist beyond his immediate reach and reading In extending the scope of Cavell's film philosophy we naturally find ourselves contending with it and amending it as the case may be Through a series of interpretive vignettes the group effort situates for the expert and novice alike how Cavell's writing on film can profitably enrich one's experience of cinema generally and also inform how we might continue the practice of serious philosophical criticism of specific films mindful of his sensibility The resulting conversations between texts traditions disciplines genres and generations creates propitious conditions for discovering what it means to watch and listen to movies with Stanley Cavell in mind Chronophobia Pamela M. Lee,2006-02-17 An examination of the pervasive anxiety about and fixation with time seen in 1960s art In the 1960s art fell out of time both artists and critics lost their temporal bearings in response to what E M Cioran called not being entitled to time This anxiety and uneasiness about time which Pamela Lee calls chronophobia cut across movements media and genres and was figured in works ranging from kinetic sculptures to Andy Warhol films Despite its pervasiveness the subject of time and 1960s art has gone largely unexamined in historical accounts of the period Chronophobia is the first critical attempt to define this obsession and analyze it in relation to art and technology Lee discusses the chronophobia of art relative to the emergence of the Information Age in postwar culture The accompanying rapid technological transformations including the advent of computers and automation processes produced for many an acute sense of historical unknowing the seemingly accelerated pace of life began to outstrip any attempts to make sense of the present Lee sees the attitude of 1960s art to time as a historical prelude to our current fixation on time and speed within digital culture Reflecting upon the 1960s cultural anxiety about temporality she argues helps us historicize our current relation to technology and time After an introductory framing of terms Lee discusses such topics as presentness with respect to the interest in systems theory in 1960s art kinetic sculpture and new forms of global media the temporality of the body and the spatialization of the visual image in the paintings of Bridget Riley and the performance art of Carolee Schneemann Robert Smithson's interest in seriality and futurity considered in light of his reading of George Kubler's important work The Shape of Time Remarks on the History of Things and Norbert Wiener's discussion of cybernetics and the endless belaboring of the present in sixties art as seen in Warhol's Empire and the work of On Kawara Gus Blaisdell Collected Gus Blaisdell,2012-09-30 This long awaited collection of Blaisdell's critical writings includes essays on literature art and film along with moving tributes by some of the distinguished writers who numbered Blaisdell among their friends The

The Lasting Influence of the War on Postwar British Film M.
