Stories of Child Sexual Abuse Paula Reavey, Sam Warner, 2003 Child sexual abuse is a multifaceted event interpreted in many different ways in many different contexts In New Feminist Stories of Child Sexual Abuse contributors try to untangle some of the complex ways in which stories of child sexual abuse are translated through and into personal professional and social politics The first section of the book explores the cultural and political landscape of child sexual abuse in Western and non Western contexts It examines the ways in which radical aspects of feminism can be undermined in Western cultures and how Westernised ideologies of childhood sex and gender have been used to structure discussions about child sexual abuse across the world The second section traces the effects of these wider cultural and political narratives through the various contexts in which child sexual abuse is theorised and around which interventions in the lives of women are structured It provides insights into how traditional approaches to understanding harm can be challenged and reworked in practice using alternative therapeutic models based on feminist post structuralist agendas Reworking earlier feminist analyses New Feminist Stories of Child Sexual Abuse asks pertinent questions about how child sexual abuse is produced rather than merely represented in the ways we speak about it Children's Rights: Progress and Perspectives Michael Freeman, 2011-10-28 More has been written about children childhood and children's rights in the last 20 years than in the rest of history There are more university courses focusing on children now than ever before The International Journal of Children's Rights has been a major player in all this Its impact is worldwide It has established itself as the leading journal in the field The journal is now in its 19th year and is flourishing This volume has been compiled not only to commemorate the journal's work but also the 20th language The Missing Child in Liberal Theory John O'Neill, 1994-12-15 The Missing Child in Liberal Theory opens public discourse on what it is Canadians hold in common through their provision of civic assurances to children and families at risk John O'Neill presents a strongly worded critique of the dominant discourse of the market society He observes the link between duty free capitalism and minimal civic obligations This book calls for a covenant society where civility and reciprocity are underwritten by a second generation concept of the Canadian welfare state that will not abandon children to disastrous prospects in a market society Confronting the current call for a leaner and meaner response to global competitiveness O'Neill challenges concepts of liberalism and communitarianism In their place he proposes a covenant concept of state community and family assurances to derive from our common provision of a civic endowment that we undertake to sustain now and for future generations of Canadians O'Neill argues that if Canada is to survive as a national community capable of responding to the global market we must reaffirm the civic foundations of the state If we fail to do this we will not have a leaner society only a meaner one This society will be hostile to capitalism and socialism alike If we can rededicate the Canadian commons to the well being of the civic person Canada will contribute a model of survival and governance among the nations of the twenty first century Report ... of the Ontario Law Reform Commission on ...

Rethinking Criminal Law Theory Francois Tanguay-Renaud,James Stribopoulos,2012-01-10

In the last two decades the philosophy of criminal law has undergone a vibrant revival in Canada. The adoption of the Charter of Rights and Freedoms has given the Supreme Court of Canada unprecedented latitude to engage with principles of legal moral and political philosophy when elaborating its criminal law jurisprudence. Canadian scholars have followed suit by paying increased attention to the philosophical foundations of domestic criminal law. Because of Canada's leadership in international criminal law both at the level of the International Criminal Court and of specific war crimes tribunals they have also begun to turn their attention to international criminal law per se. This collection seeks to bring all these Canadian voices together for the first time and evidence the fact that criminal law theory is no longer to be associated exclusively with the older British, German and American traditions. The topics covered include questions of philosophical methodology, the legitimate scope of domestic and international criminalization, rationales for criminal law defences in both domestic and international law, the philosophical underpinnings of specific crimes and forms of joint responsibility as well as the theorization of criminal procedure and evidence law.

ENDORSEMENTS

In continental Europe academic commentary on the criminal law has long manifested large philosophical ambitions. Less so in common law countries where the dominance of jury trial and the piecemeal development of case law together with the famously robust attitudes of common lawyers have militated against detailed philosophical engagement with doctrine. Over the last 20 years or so however new generations of philosophically literate lawyers and legally informed philosophers have overcome the historic resistance. Nowhere more so it seems than in Canada where the common law and civilian traditions meet. In Rethinking Criminal Law Theory François Tanguay Renaud and James Stribopoulos have joined with 14 talented Canadian colleagues to showcase the tremendous breadth and depth of their contemporary national contribution to the subject. Ranging across topics as diverse as emergency, obscenity and insanity these essays without exception insightful and penetrating set a high standard for the rest of us to aspire to. John Gardner, University of Oxford.

Rethinking Criminal Law Theory is an excellent collection of essays demonstrating the vigour, creativity and range of Canadian criminal justice scholarship. It covers a wide range of problems and issues both in the domestic and the international context. Core questions are examined in depth and new questions are brought to the fore. I recommend it very highly to criminal lawyers and philosophers of the criminal law. Professor Victor Tadros, University of Warwick.

Rethinking Criminal Law Theory is packed with outstanding contributions from criminal law theorists who are among the best not only in Canada but in the whole English speaking world. Broad and deep in its coverage the collection offers fresh approaches to a wide range of cutting edge issues in the field. It provides a resource readers will come back to repeatedly. Stuart Green, Professor of Law and Justice, Nathan L. Jacobs Scholar, Rutgers University.

Brian Howe, Katherine Covell, 2007-06-15 In 1991 the Government of Canada ratified the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child requiring governments at all levels to ensure that Canadian laws and practices safeguard the rights of children A Question of Commitment Children s Rights in Canada is the first book to assess the extent to which Canada has fulfilled this commitment The editors R Brian Howe and Katherine Covell contend that Canada has wavered in its commitment to the rights of children and is ambivalent in the political culture about the principle of children's rights. A Question of Commitment expands the scope of the editors' earlier book The Challenge of Children's Rights for Canada by including the voices of specialists in particular fields of children's rights and by incorporating recent developments. Alberta Law Review, 2006
