environmentally and socio culturally sound interventions are developed and applied in the complex geophysical ecological and social landscapes of the world's mountain systems. The book provides holistic understanding of mountain soils to help environmental and soil scientists gain insight and develop new problem solving approaches. With obvious up and downstream linkages e.g. a large proportion of urban canisters globally depend on water that originates in the mountains as well as globalization e.g. continental scale impacts of air pollution and climate change on glaciers, the long range success of conservation measures in mountain regions requires that the following discrete but interconnected interventions be pursued concurrently: 1. the protection of biodiversity and ecosystem services, 2. empowerment of mountain communities including family farming and 3. elaboration of more thoughtful context specific policy environments for sustainable mountain development. Offers comprehensive coverage of all aspects of mountain soils including climate change, ecosystem services and threats. Focuses on exploring the human and anthropogenic challenges associated with the sustainable management of soils in mountain landscapes. Includes content on biochar mediated microbial community dynamics. Radiant Geography ,

A handful of in depth house portraits are selected for the insight they provide into major regional developments based on the author's extended engagement since 1981. Most of these houses are Buddhist and associated with the town of Leh. Drawing on both image and text collaborative methods for assembling material show the intricate relationships between people and places over the life course. Innovative methods for recording and archiving such as storyboards are developed to frame different views of the house. This approach raises analytical questions about the composition of life within and beyond storyboards, offering new ways to understand a region that intrigues specialists and non specialists alike.
