Information Processing Meets Brain Science Richard G.M. Morris, Lionel Tarassenko, Michael Kenward, 2005-08-16 Cognitive Systems Information Processing Meets Brain Science presents an overview of the exciting truly multidisciplinary research by neuroscientists and systems engineers in the emerging field of cognitive systems providing a cross disciplinary examination of this cutting edge area of scientific research This is a great example of where research in very different disciplines touches to create a new emerging area of research The book illustrates some of the technical developments that could arise from our growing understanding of how living cognitive systems behave and the ability to use that knowledge in the design of artificial systems This unique book is of considerable interest to researchers and students in information science neuroscience psychology engineering and adjacent fields Represents a remarkable collection of relevant experts from both the life sciences and computer science Includes state of the art reviews of topics in cognitive systems from both a life sciences and a computer science perspective Discusses the impact of this research on our lives in the near future A Law of Peoples for Recognizing States Chris Naticchia, 2016-11-02 Which political entities should the international community recognize as member states granting them the rights and powers of statehood and entitling them to participate in formulating adjudicating and implementing international law What criteria should it use and are those criteria defensible From Kosovo Palestine and Taiwan to South Sudan Scotland South Ossetia Abkhazia and Catalonia these questions continuously arise and constantly challenge the international community for a consistent principled stance In response to this challenge Chris Naticchia offers a social contract argument for a theory of international recognition a normative theory of the criteria that states and international bodies should use to recognize political entities as member states of the international community Regardless of whether political entities adequately respect human rights or practice democracy he argues we must recognize a critical mass of them to get international institutions working Then we should recognize secessionist

entities that suffer from persistent grave and widespread human rights abuses by their government and under certain conditions minority nations within multinational states that seek independence We must also recognize entities whose recognition would contribute to the economic development of the least well off entities Drawing on the social contract tradition and developing a broadly Rawlsian view A Law of Peoples for Recognizing States will both challenge and appeal to a broad readership in political philosophy international law and international relations
