African-Centered Pedagogy Peter C. Murrell Jr.,2012-02-01 What can teachers administrators families and communities do to create schools that provide rich learning experiences for African American children Based on a critical reinterpretation of several key educational frameworks African Centered Pedagogy is a practical guide to accomplished teaching Murrell suggests integrating the historical cultural political and developmental considerations of the African American experience into a unified system of instruction bringing to light those practices that already exist and linking them to contemporary ideas and innovations that concern effective practice in African American communities This is then applied through a case study analysis of a school seeking to incorporate the unified theory and embrace African centered practice Murrell argues that key educational frameworks although currently ineffective with African American children hold promise if reinterpreted

Ethnography in the Open Science and Digital Age: New Debates, Dilemmas, and Issues Colin Jerolmack, Alexandra Murphy, Victoria Reyes, 2024-06-19 In the current moment ethnography is caught up in a number of debates that have led ethnographers to reflect on classic methodological and ethical dilemmas in new ways The replication crisis had led to a movement for open science e.g. registering hypotheses in advance sharing codes and data but it seems unclear that recommended best practices are appropriate to ethnography It is even up for debate whether ethnography is more of a social science or a genre The fact that many ethnographies are widely read invites questions and criticisms from beyond the ivory tower including our subjects about the ethics of representation e g who has license to write about whom and the extent to which journalistic standards of data verification and transparency e g fact checking naming sources should apply to qualitative research Some ethnographers are calling for more open critical discussions about the embodied dimensions of fieldwork including not only emotions but also issues like sexual intimacy and harassment There s also a growing expectation that ethnographers empower our subjects to represent and analyze themselves What s more as more of social life is lived online it becomes increasingly unclear where the boundaries of the field site should be drawn and whether ethnographic conventions can be applied wholesale to the study of digital spaces

A Match on Dry Grass Mark R. Warren, Karen L. Mapp, 2011-09-29 The persistent failure of public schooling in low income communities constitutes one of our nation s most pressing civil rights and social justice issues Many school reformers recognize that poverty racism and a lack of power held by these communities undermine children s education and development but few know what to do about it A Match on Dry Grass argues that community organizing represents a fresh and promising approach to school reform as part of a broader agenda to build power for low income communities and address the profound social inequalities that affect the education of children Based on a comprehensive national study the book presents rich and compelling case studies of prominent organizing efforts in Chicago New York City Los Angeles Denver San Jose and the Mississippi Delta The authors show how organizing groups build the participation and leadership of parents and students so they can become powerful actors in school improvement efforts They also identify promising ways to overcome divisions and create the collaborations between educators and community residents required for deep and sustainable school reform Identifying the key processes that create strong connections between schools and communities Warren Mapp and their collaborators show how community organizing builds powerful relationships that lead to the transformational change necessary to advance educational equity and a robust democracy
