the French Fighter pilots who flew for the RAF during WWII      Operation Oyster World War II's Forgotten Raid Kees Rijken, Paul Schepers, Arthur G. Thorning, 2014-08-15 Operation Oyster was carried out on the 6th December 1942 by 2 Group RAF. Considered to be a notable success for the allies, it cost the Germans an estimated six months of lost production time at a critical point in the conflict. It is arguable according to the authors that the operation was in fact rather more significant than Operation Chastise, the Dambuster raid, while accepting that was a remarkable feat of arms. Operation Oyster struck at the very heart of what Churchill termed the wizard war against German radio navigational technology by attacking a central hub of activity, the Philips Radio Works in Eindhoven, The Netherlands. The development of electronics in WWII was the most significant technical aspect of weaponry over the course of the conflict. On both sides, there were great advances in radar and communications which at that time depended on the wide scale use of high frequency radio valves; few companies had the technology to produce these, but the leading one in Europe was Philips in Eindhoven. Thus it was determined that Philips was the most important target. Ninety-three allied aircraft took part, and a total of fourteen were lost. But the result, in terms of damages to the enemy, was considerable, hindering the German war effort significantly and consequently aiding the allies. Despite these facts, however, the story of the raid has been underreported, and the efforts of the aircrew who took part have been little recognized. By comparison, the Dambuster raid, which came six months later, has entered into folklore. Here, for the first time, the overlooked Oyster raid is afforded the attention it deserves.

A History of the Mediterranean Air War, 1940-1945 Christopher Shores, Russell Guest, 2025-09-30 In 1943, Allied bombers from Italy launched strategic attacks on Axis oil fields, factories, and Danube supply routes. Following the inter Allied Casablanca Conference in January 1943, the outline for the Combined Bomber Offensive was agreed, and resulted in early February with the Casablanca Directive. This required the progressive destruction and dislocation of the German military industrial and economic systems and the undermining of the morale of the German people to a point where their capacity for armed resistance is fatally weakened. This directive was clarified in June when the Combined Chiefs of Staff issued the Pointblank Directive, which stated that the highest priority targets were the fighter aircraft factories, to ensure that in the coming invasion of France, the enemy would not have air superiority. When these directives were issued, it was envisaged that, as well as attacks by RAF Bomber Command and the US 8th Air Force based in England, the strategic bomber forces in Italy would begin operations once suitable bases were available. After the Allied landings in Italy and the resulting collapse of the Italian fascist regime, a network of bomber bases was hastily developed. Thus on 1 November 1943, the US 15th Air Force was formed to conduct the daylight bombing offensive against strategic targets in southern Germany and across southeastern Europe. Key among these were the Rumanian oilfields and traffic along the River Danube. This new formation was joined by the smaller but highly effective 205 Group RAF, which was trained and equipped for night bombing, so mirroring their equivalent British based formations. The damaging attacks on the Reich's oil supplies and the highly effective Danube mining campaign, conducted at night by 205

Group delivered huge strategic effect The latter reduced vital oil and goods traffic into the Reich to a trickle but also dislocated the supply and logistics train into the southern part of the Eastern Front so giving manifest support to the Soviets In this volume the early months of this hugely significant air campaign are described in minute and original detail and are accompanied by hundreds of hitherto unpublished photographs In combating these attacks Germany's Axis allies such as Hungary Rumania Bulgaria and Slovakia were encountered for the first time by the Western Allies      National Archives and Records Service Inventory Series United States. Ministry of Information,1945      Royal Air Force Quarterly and Commonwealth Air Forces Journal ,1944      Air Power at the Battlefront Dr Ian Gooderson,2013-05-13 Ian Gooderson presents a study of close air support in World War II with the analysis focusing on the use of tactical air power by British and American forces during the campaigns in Italy and northwestern Europe between 1943 and 1945
