Rayleigh A History:

Rayleigh Ian Yearsley, 2005 Rayleigh owes its origins to the flints on Hambro Hill which attracted its first human residents as long ago as the Stone Age In Saxon times the focus moved to the area covered by the modern High Street but it was not until Rayleigh Castle was built under the Normans that the town really came to life Its market and fair made it one of the principal towns in south east Essex throughout the medieval period and many significant historic buildings from the 14th century onwards survive After a period of decline in the 18th and early 19th centuries the town s importance revived with the coming of the railway in 1889 Rapid development followed and the 20th century saw massive expansion beyond the High Street area This book is the first full chronological history of Rayleigh to be written and sheds light on several poorly documented periods including the first half of the 20th century A wide selection of splendid previously unpublished illustrations enhances this welcome addition to the bookshelves of Rayleigh residents and local historians alike A History of Aerodynamics John David Anderson, John D. Anderson, Jr, 1998 From the Foreword John Anderson s book represents a milestone in aviation literature For the first time aviation enthusiasts both specialists and popular readers alike possess an authoritative history of aerodynamic theory Not only is this study authoritative it is also highly readable and linked to the actual and more familiar story of how the airplane evolved The book touches on all the major theorists and their contributions and most important the historical context in which they worked to move the science of aerodynamics forward Von Hardesty Smithsonian Institution From the reviews Something of the unexpected quality of this book can be inferred from its full title A History of Aerodynamics and Its Impact on Flying Machines Pilots tend to suppose that the science of aerodynamics began empirically somewhere around the time of Lilienthal and the Wrights and that aerodynamics and manned flight are roughly coeval It is therefore surprising to come upon a photograph of the Wright Flyer as late as page 242 of the 478 page volume Peter Garrison Flying This book successfully straddles the boundary that separates a text book from a history book It is of equal interest to both the aerodynamicist and the layman The textual balance achieved by the author has resulted in a book that is enjoyable and educational Earl See American Aviation Historical Society Newsletter

The History of the Theory of Structures Karl-Eugen Kurrer, 2012-01-09 This book traces the evolution of theory of structures and strength of materials the development of the geometrical thinking of the Renaissance to become the fundamental engineering science discipline rooted in classical mechanics Starting with the strength experiments of Leonardo da Vinci and Galileo the author examines the emergence of individual structural analysis methods and their formation into theory of structures in the 19th century For the first time a book of this kind outlines the development from classical theory of structures to the structural mechanics and computational mechanics of the 20th century In doing so the author has managed to bring alive the differences between the players with respect to their engineering and scientific profiles and personalities and to create an understanding for the social context Brief insights into common methods of analysis backed up by historical details help the reader gain an understanding of the history of structural mechanics from the standpoint of modern engineering practice A total of 175 brief biographies of important personalities in civil and structural engineering as well as structural mechanics plus an extensive bibliography round off this work A History of Aerodynamics John D. Anderson, Jr, 1999-01-28 From the Foreword John Anderson's book represents a milestone in aviation literature For the first time aviation enthusiasts both specialists and popular readers alike possess an authoritative history of aerodynamic theory Not only is this study authoritative it is also highly readable and linked to the actual and more familiar story of how the airplane evolved The book touches on all the major theorists and their contributions and most important the historical context in which they worked to move the science of aerodynamics forward Von Hardesty Smithsonian Institution From the reviews Something of the unexpected quality of this book can be inferred from its full title A History of Aerodynamics and Its Impact on Flying Machines Pilots tend to suppose that the science of aerodynamics began empirically somewhere around the time of Lilienthal and the Wrights and that aerodynamics and manned flight are roughly coeval It is therefore surprising to come upon a photograph of the Wright Flyer as late as page 242 of the 478 page volume Peter Garrison Flying This book successfully straddles the boundary that separates a text book from a history book It is of equal interest to both the aerodynamicist and the layman The textual balance achieved by the author has resulted in a book that is enjoyable and educational Earl See American Aviation Historical Society Newsletter History of Strength of Materials Stephen Timoshenko, 1983-01-01 Strength of materials is that branch of engineering concerned with the deformation and disruption of solids when forces other than changes in position or equilibrium are acting upon them The development of our understanding of the strength of materials has enabled engineers to establish the forces which can safely be imposed on structure or components or to choose materials appropriate to the necessary dimensions of structures and components which have to withstand given loads without suffering effects deleterious to their proper functioning This excellent historical survey of the strength of materials with many references to the theories of elasticity and structures is based on an extensive series of lectures delivered by the author at Stanford University Palo Alto California Timoshenko explores the early roots of the discipline from the great monuments and pyramids of ancient Egypt through the temples roads and fortifications of ancient Greece and Rome The author fixes the formal beginning of the modern science of the strength of materials with the publications of Galileo's book Two Sciences and traces the rise and development as well as industrial and commercial applications of the fledgling science from the seventeenth century through the twentieth century Timoshenko fleshes out the bare bones of mathematical theory with lucid demonstrations of important equations and brief biographies of highly influential mathematicians including Euler Lagrange Navier Thomas Young Saint Venant Franz Neumann Maxwell Kelvin Rayleigh Klein Prandtl and many others These theories equations and biographies are further enhanced by clear discussions

A Cultural History of Physics Károly Simonyi, 2025-02-28 While the physical sciences are a continuously evolving source of technology and of understanding about our world they have become so specialized and rely on so much prerequisite knowledge that for many people today the divide between the sciences and the humanities seems even greater than it was when C P Snow delivered his famous 1959 lecture The Two Cultures In A Cultural History of Physics Hungarian scientist and educator K roly Simonyi succeeds in bridging this chasm by describing the experimental methods and theoretical interpretations that created scientific knowledge from ancient times to the present day within the cultural environment in which it was formed Unlike any other work of its kind Simonyi s seminal opus explores the interplay of science and the humanities to convey the wonder and excitement of scientific development throughout the ages These pages contain an abundance of excerpts from original resources a wide array of clear and straightforward explanations and an astonishing wealth of insight revealing the historical progress of science and inviting readers into a dialogue with the great scientific minds that shaped our current understanding of physics Beautifully illustrated accurate in its scientific content and broad in its historical and cultural perspective this book will be a valuable reference for scholars and an inspiration to aspiring scientists and humanists who believe that science is an integral part of our culture A

Natural History of Time Pascal Richet,2009-10-15 The quest to pinpoint the age of the Earth is nearly as old as humanity itself For most of history people trusted mythology or religion to provide the answer even though nature abounds with clues to the past of the Earth and the stars In A Natural History of Time geophysicist Pascal Richet tells the fascinating story of how scientists and philosophers examined those clues and from them built a chronological scale that has made it possible to reconstruct the history of nature itself Richet begins his story with mythological traditions which were heavily influenced by the seasons and almost uniformly viewed time cyclically The linear history promulgated by Judaism with its story of creation was an exception and it was that tradition that drove early Christian attempts to date the Earth For instance in 169 CE the bishop of Antioch for instance declared that the world had been in existence for 5 698 years and the odd months and days Until the mid eighteenth century such natural timescales derived from biblical chronologies prevailed but Richet demonstrates with the Scientific Revolution geological and astronomical evidence for much longer timescales began to accumulate Fossils and the developing science of geology provided compelling evidence for periods of millions and millions of years a scale that even scientists had difficulty grasping By the end of the twentieth century new tools such as radiometric dating had demonstrated that the solar system is four and a half billion years old and the universe itself about twice that though controversial questions remain The quest for time is a story of ingenuity and determination and like a geologist Pascal Richet carefully peels back the strata of that history giving us a chance to marvel at each layer and truly appreciate how far our knowledge and our planet have come A History of Thermodynamics Ingo Müller,2007-07-16 The most exciting and significant episode of scientific progress is the development of thermodynamics and electrodynamics in the 19th century and early 20th century The nature of heat and temperature was recognized the conservation of energy was discovered and the realization that mass and energy are equivalent provided a new fuel and unlimited power Much of this occurred in unison with the rapid technological advance provided by the steam engine the electric motor internal combustion engines refrigeration and the rectification processes of the chemical industry The availability of cheap power and cheap fuel has had its impact on society Populations grew the standard of living increased the environment became clean traffic became easy and life expectancy was raised Knowledge fairly exploded The western countries where all this happened gained in power and influence and western culture scientific culture spread across the globe and is still spreading At the same time thermodynamics recognized the stochastic and probabilistic aspect of natural processes It turned out that the doctrine of energy and entropy rules the world the first ingredient energy is deterministic as it were and the second entropy favours randomness Both tendencies compete and they find the precarious balance needed for stability and change alike
