A History of Food in Literature
Charlotte Boyce, Joan Fitzpatrick, 2017-05-18 When novels plays and poems refer to food they are often doing much more than we might think Recent critical thinking suggests that depictions of food in literary works can help to explain the complex relationship between the body subjectivity and social structures A History of Food in Literature provides a clear and comprehensive overview of significant episodes of food and its consumption in major canonical literary works from the medieval period to the twenty first century This volume contextualises these works with reference to pertinent historical and cultural materials such as cookery books diaries and guides to good health in order to engage with the critical debate on food and literature and how ideas of food have developed over the centuries Organised chronologically and examining certain key writers from every period including Chaucer Shakespeare Austen and Dickens this book s enlightening critical analysis makes it relevant for anyone interested in the study of food and literature

Black Africans in the British Imagination
Cassander L. Smith, 2016-12-14 As Spain and England vied for dominance of the Atlantic world during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries mounting political and religious tensions between the two empires raised a troubling specter for contemporary British writers attempting to justify early English imperial efforts Specifically these writers focused on encounters with black Africans throughout the Atlantic world attempting to use these points of contact to articulate and defend England s global ambitions In Black Africans in the British Imagination Cassander L. Smith investigates how the physical presence of black Africans both enabled and disrupted English literary responses to Spanish imperialism By examining the extent to which this population helped to shape early English narratives from political pamphlets to travelogues Smith offers new perspectives on the literary social and political impact of black Africans in the early Atlantic world With detailed analysis of the earliest English language accounts from the Atlantic world including writings by Sir Francis Drake Sir Walter Raleigh and Richard Ligon Smith approaches contact narratives from the perspective of black Africans recovering figures often relegated to the margins This interdisciplinary study explores understandings of race and cross cultural interaction and revises notions of whiteness blackness and indigeneity Smith reveals the extent to which contact with black Africans impeded English efforts to stigmatize the Spanish empire as villainous and to malign Spain s administration of its colonies In addition her study illustrates how black presences influenced the narrative choices of

European and later Euro American writers providing a more nuanced understanding of black Africans role in contemporary literary productions of the region

The Savage and Modern Self Robbie Richardson, 2018-04-13 The Savage and Modern Self examines the representations of North American Indians in novels poetry plays and material culture from eighteenth century Britain Author Robbie Richardson argues that depictions of Indians in British literature were used to critique and articulate evolving ideas about consumerism colonialism Britishness and ultimately the modern self over the course of the century Considering the ways in which British writers represented contact between Britons and Indians both at home and abroad the author shows how these sites of contact moved from a self affirmation of British authority earlier in the century to a mutual corruption to a desire to appropriate perceived traits of Indianess Looking at texts exclusively produced in Britain The Savage and Modern Self reveals that the modern finds definition through imagined scenes of cultural contact By the end of the century Richardson concludes the hybrid Indian Briton emerging in literature and visual culture exemplifies a form of modern British masculinity

Sewell, 2016-04-26 In the broad context of Christianity as it developed over two millennia and with special reference to the last three centuries this discussion finds that Evangelicalism has repeatedly offered a reduced and distorted understanding of the faith The evangelical outlook is much less scriptural than evangelicals generally assume When it comes to appreciating the order of creation our calling to develop integral Christian thinking and living the religious significance of culture and the coming of the kingdom reductionist Evangelicalism struggles with its only rarely acknowledged deficiencies As a result we have all too often ended up with a Christianity shorn of its cosmic scope and wide cultural implications and restricted to institutional church life and the cultivation of private spiritual experience The consequences are frequently enervating and corrosive Without disregarding what is important in the past evangelicals are here challenged to take the Bible much more seriously and thereby transcend the limitations of their habitual reductionism Evangelicals are encouraged to embrace an integral and full orbbed understanding of Christian discipleship that will equip the faithful to address the deep and complex challenges of the twenty first century A Free People's Suicide Os Guinness,2012-06-11 Cultural observer Os Guinness argues that the American experiment in freedom is at risk Guinness calls us to cultivate the essential civic character needed for ordered liberty and sustainable freedom True freedom requires virtue which in turn requires faith Only within the framework of what is true right and good can freedom be found Cast Down Mark J. Miller,2016-04-15 In Cast Down Abjection in America 1700 1850 Mark J Miller argues that transatlantic Protestant discourses of abjection engaged with and furthered the development of concepts of race and sexuality in the creation of public subjects and public spheres
