Social Policies in Seychelles Liam Campling, Hansel Confiance, Marie-Therese Purvis, 2011 SOCIAL POLICIES IN SMALL STATES SERIES The country case studies and thematic papers in this series examine social policy issues facing small states and the implications for economic development They show how despite their inherent vulnerability some small states have been successful in improving their social indicators because of the complementary social and economic policies they have implemented CASE STUDY SEYCHELLES Seychelles has one of the most extensive social policy programmes in the developing world and has been identified as a model for the rest of Africa As a small state however it remains economically vulnerable and in 2008 had to accept a financial rescue package from the IMF This book provides comprehensive analysis of social policy development in the country from the colonial era onwards focusing on the political and economic developments that have led to the current situation The challenge now is to maintain current levels of social policy interventions in the face of severe indebtedness and the stagnation of economic growth

Bioenergy and food security (BEFS) assessment -

Seychelles Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2022-06-02 A sustainable and stable energy supply is essential for a country's stability and wellbeing Seychelles like many small island developing states SIDS currently depends on imported energy in the form of fossil fuels The high dependence on fossil fuel imports means Seychelles is highly vulnerable to disruptions in global markets The situation is exacerbated by a reliance on imported food which accounts for about 70 percent of food consumption To limit this dependence it is aiming to increase its reliance on renewable energy to 15 percent by 2030 with a long term ambition of using 100 percent renewable sources for electricity production Sustainable bioenergy is one form of renewable energy that can be used to green a country's energy mix This Sustainable Bioenergy Assessment report for Seychelles looks at the potential for sustainable bioenergy within the country considering the country context conditions and delicate habitat The report considers sustainable biomass sources from the agriculture forestry and waste sectors The assessment was conducted following the bioenergy and food security BEFS approach of FAO and identifies a number of bioenergy pathways relevant for the country Within the report the different forms of biomass their availability and viability are assessed Livestock crop and forestry residues and the biodegradable portion of waste otherwise destined for landfill are among the sources of biomass considered The use of these biomass types and amounts are then assessed from a technical and economic point of view under different price scenarios for the production of energy
