Willa Cather, 1931 Shadows on the Rock is a novel by the American writer Willa Cather published in 1931. The novel covers one year of the lives of Cécile Auclair and her father Euclide, French colonists in Quebec. Like many of Cather's books, the story is driven by detailed portraits of the characters rather than a narrative plot.

Book I: The Apothecary

The story opens in 1697 in Quebec. Euclide Auclair stands on Cap Diamant overlooking the river, watching as the last ship of the season returns to France. He comes down to dinner with his daughter Cécile. After dinner, Cécile feeds Blinker, a partially disabled hired man who does some of the heavy chores. Euclide Auclair came to the Quebec colony eight years prior in the service of Count de Frontenac as physician and apothecary. His wife has died after an illness, and the duties of housekeeping have devolved upon his daughter Cécile. The following day, Cécile and Euclide attend to Reverend Mother Juschereau, who has sprained her ankle. Her father replenishes the hospital supplies while Mother Juschereau tells Cécile a story.

Book II: Cécile and Jacques

On market day in late October, Euclide goes to buy vegetables to store in his root cellar. A description is given of citizens growing lettuce and root vegetables in cold frames in their cellars during the long winter. He goes to the church to say a prayer and notices Jacques, the son of a dissolute woman, also saying his prayers. Cécile goes to Governor Frontenac to ask for a pair of shoes for Jacques. He praises her for her charity and industry and asks if she would like anything for herself. She asks to look at his bowl of glass fruit, and he reminisces about his experiences in Turkey where the glass was made.

Book III: The Long Winter

The young Bishop Saint Vallier calls at Auclair's shop for sugared fruit. We learn that Bishop Saint Vallier has undone the system of education and parish management instituted over twenty years by Bishop Laval. Euclide does not like the young bishop because of his extravagant way of life, his snubbing of the older bishop, and because he believes Saint

Vallier makes poor decisions Euclide derides him a less like a churchman than a courtier Book IV Pierre Charron In June a fur trader named Pierre Charron calls on Euclide He tells many stories to Euclide and C cile and accompanies C cile on a visit to friends on the le d Orl ans Book V The ships from France With many of their fellow townsfolk C cile and Jacques go down to the harbor to watch as five ships arrive from France There is a general celebration C cile receives packages from her two French aunts containing clothing and jewelry C cile is scheduled to return to France when the ships leave at the end of summer but is having reservations She tells her father that she is concerned about who will look after her friend Jacques Her father takes no notice and she is quite upset She goes to the church to pray and runs into Bishop Laval to whom she relates her troubles Book VI The Dying Count The Count learns that despite his expectations he is not being recalled to France He tells Euclide that he is released from his service and may return to France but Euclide chooses to remain The Count tells Euclide that he is dying and directs him to take the bowl of glass fruit to C cile as a gift Some time later the Count passes away The two bishops resolve their differences wilderness of trackless forests For many of its settlers Quebec is a place of exile so remote that an entire winter passes without a word from home But to twelve year old Cécile Auclair the rock is home where even the formidable Governor Frontenac entertains children in his palace and beavers lie beside the lambs in a Christmas crèche As Cather follows this devout and resourceful child over the course of a year she re-creates the continent as it must have appeared to its first European inhabitants And she gives us a spellbinding work of historical fiction in which great events occur first as rumors and then as legends and in which even the most intimate domestic scenes are suffused with a sense of wonder The Changed Cross, and the Shadow of the Rock Anonymous,2023-05-05 Reprint of the original first published in 1872 The publishing house Anatiposi publishes historical books as reprints Due to their age these books may have missing pages or inferior quality Our aim is to preserve these books and make them available to the public so that they do not get lost interpretations of Pound's political poetic thought. On the Divide David H. Porter, 2008-12-01. On the Divide analyzes the iconic image that Cather helped develop for herself in contrast to the anonymous face she adopted for promotional activities and the very different private self she shared only with friends and family. Delving into Cather's correspondence and the little-known promotional material she produced anonymously, David Porter provides new insight into the extent and direction of her control. He also considers the contrasting influences of Mary Baker Eddy whose biography Cather ghostwrote and Sarah Orne Jewett on the author's emerging artistic persona. The study goes on to explore the many ways in which these OC divides in Cather's life found expression in her writing. Extending from Cather's early stories to her final novel, Porter's book documents the degree to which Cather's understanding of her own different and often conflicting sides and of her penchant for playing diverse roles enabled her as a novelist to create characters so torn, so complex, and so profoundly human.
