Breathing Space Gregg Mitman, 2008-10-01 Allergy is the sixth leading cause of chronic illness in the United States More than fifty million Americans suffer from allergies and they spend an estimated 18 billion coping with them Yet despite advances in biomedicine and enormous investment in research over the past fifty years the burden of allergic disease continues to grow Why have we failed to reverse this trend Breathing Space offers an intimate portrait of how allergic disease has shaped American culture landscape and life Drawing on environmental medical and cultural history and the life stories of people plants and insects Mitman traces how America's changing environment from the late 1800s to the present day has led to the epidemic growth of allergic disease We have seen a never ending stream of solutions to combat allergies from hay fever resorts herbicides and air conditioned homes to numerous potions and pills But as Mitman shows despite the quest for a magic bullet none of the attempted solutions has succeeded Until we address how our changing environment physical biological social and economic has helped to create America's allergic landscape that hoped for success will continue to elude us

Blackbird's Song Theodore J. Karamanski,2012-09-01 For much of U S history the story of native people has been written by historians and anthropologists relying on the often biased accounts of European American observers Though we have become well acquainted with war chiefs like Pontiac and Crazy Horse it has been at the expense of better knowing civic minded intellectuals like Andrew J Blackbird who sought in 1887 to give a voice to his people through his landmark book History of the Ottawa and Chippewa People Blackbird chronicled the numerous ways in which these Great Lakes people fought to retain their land and culture first with military resistance and later by claiming the tools of citizenship This stirring account reflects on the lived experience of the Odawa people and the work of one of their greatest advocates Hauntings
