Northwestern Christian Advocate ,1907 London is the Place for Me Kennetta Hammond Perry,2016-01-04 Black people in the British Empire have long challenged the notion that there ain t no black in the Union Jack For the post World War II wave of Afro Caribbean migrants many of whom had long been subjects of the Empire claims to a British identity and imperial citizenship were considered to be theirs by birthright However while Britain was internationally touted as a paragon of fair play and equal justice they arrived in a nation that was frequently hostile and unwilling to incorporate Black people into its concept of what it meant to be British Black Britons therefore confronted the racial politics of British citizenship and became active political agents in challenging anti Black racism In a society with a highly racially circumscribed sense of identity and the laws customs and institutions to back it up Black Britons had to organize and fight to assert their right to belong In London Is The Place for Me Kennetta Hammond Perry explores how Afro Caribbean migrants navigated the politics of race and citizenship in Britain and reconfigured the boundaries of what it meant to be both Black and British at a critical juncture in the history of Empire and twentieth century transnational race politics She situates their experience within a broader context of Black imperial and diasporic political participation and examines the pushback both legal and physical that the migrants presence provoked Bringing together a variety of sources including calypso music photographs migrant narratives and records of grassroots Black political organizations London Is the Place for Me positions Black Britons as part of wider public debates both at home and abroad about citizenship the meaning of Britishness and the politics of race in the second half of the twentieth century The United Kingdom s postwar discriminatory curbs on immigration and explosion of racial violence forced White Britons as well as Black to question their perception of Britain as a racially progressive society and therefore to question the very foundation of their own identities Perry s examination expands our understanding of race and the Black experience in Europe and uncovers the critical role that Black people played in the formation of contemporary British society

Mo Zi Mo Zi, Mozi Chinese pinyin M z c 470 c 391 BC original name Mo Di was a Chinese philosopher during the Hundred Schools of Thought period early Warring States period A book named after him the Mozi contains material ascribed to him and his followers Born in what is now Tengzhou Shandong Province he founded the school of Mohism that argued strongly against Confucianism and Taoism His philosophy emphasized self restraint self reflection and authenticity rather than obedience to ritual During the Warring States period Mohism was actively developed and practiced in many states but fell out of favour when the legalist Qin dynasty came to power During that period many Mohist classics are by many believed to have been ruined when the emperor Qin Shi Huang supposedly carried out the burning of books and burying of scholars The importance of Mohism further declined when Confucianism became the dominant school of thought during the Han Dynasty until mostly disappearing by the middle of the Western Han dynasty The concept of Ai was developed by the Chinese philosopher Mozi in the 4th century BC in reaction to Confucianism s benevolent love Mozi tried to replace what he considered to be the long entrenched Chinese over attachment to family and clan structures with the concept of universal love ji n i In this he argued directly against Confucians who believed that it was natural and correct for people to care about different people in different degrees Mozi is also the name of the philosophical text compiled by Mohists from Mozi s thought This text originally consisted of 71 chapters Because Mohism disappeared as a living tradition from China its texts were not well maintained and many chapters are missing or in a corrupted state
