Long-Term Conflict Prevention and Industrial Development Ralf Bredel,2003 After decades of striving to prevent international conflict major armed conflicts in the 1990s have taken place within national boundaries After the series of national independence wars in the 1950s and 1960s and frequent geopolitical wars in the 1970s and 1980s a category of wars of the third kind prevailed The aim of this book is to consider the root causes of recent internal conflicts and to develop long term conflict prevention strategies from here New insights suggest the central role of politico economic inequalities in ethnic religious and cultural conflict The United Nations system has just started to adjust to this new reality of conflict and make long term conflict prevention a priority issue on international agendas Whereas development practitioners should principally conceive their work through a conflict prevention lens there is a shift in focus to United Nations agencies that deal with the economic characteristics of conflict The unbroken significance of a sustainable industrial development process in developing countries may allow the United Nations Industrial Development Organization UNIDO a particular vantage point and role in the long term prevention of conflict

Acquisition of Technological Capability in Small Firms in Developing Countries H. Romijn, 1998-11-18 An authoritative examination of how small firms in developing countries acquire technological capability the knowledge and skills required to operate technology effectively and to adapt it to local conditions It fills a gap in the established literature on technological capability which has neglected the small scale sector in spite of the important role it plays in employment generation The author develops a methodology for a quantitative assessment of the learning process using case material from the small scale capital goods sector in Pakistan s Punjab Province Human Rights and Choice in Poverty Alan G. Smith, 1997-08-30 This interdisciplinary study applies human rights theory to the problems of rural poverty in the Third World Considering the interdependence of minimal food and health security with minimal assurance of basic freedoms political scientist Alan G Smith traces the linkage to the need of the food insecure to seek clientelistic dependencies on better off neighbors relationships that often operate to restrict freedom of choice In contrast to conventional rural development aid which can introduce new client dependency if pursued alone Smith stresses the need to find other forms of aid that would provide the option of assured minimal survival while avoiding the constraints imposed by dependency Arguing for bolstering bottom up human rights momentum he suggests the transfer of appropriate tools into the hands of the target group Recipients would make use of them to enhance autonomous food crop production thereby making client dependency a matter of choice rather than necessity Smith illustrates the Third World predicament of food insecurity leading to infringement of rights by drawing together empirical evidence from Bangladesh Botswana and Tanzania He further argues that respect for human rights involves a duty on the part of advantaged nations to address the Third World predicament with practical measures fully consistent with human rights and for each of these three country cases Smith recommends direct locally specific minimalist aid His model its practical illustration and recommendations should be valuable to academics and students in the fields of rural sociology anthropology and political science especially those focusing on human rights poverty and Third World development as well as bureaucrats and consultants in the development aid field
