Madame De Stael:

Madame de Stael Maria Fairweather, 2013-09-05 The influence of the salons of Paris on the thought and culture of the eighteenth century would be difficult to overstate They were both intellectual powerhouses and also assemblies where the latest and most extreme fashion was displayed Young gallants wearing silk waistcoats embroidered with Chinese pagodas making love to ladies reclining negligently against the cushions or accepting small cups of chocolate from the hands of Negro pages thus Harold Nicolson describes the drawings of the time in his book The Age of Reason These meeting places for the vanguard of society were presided over by a succession of brilliantly clever women the salonieres and the most brilliant and clever of all of them was Madame de Stael Although she died at the age of 51 she filled her life to the brim and enjoyed a hugely influential role among the great names of the day Born Germaine Necker in Paris on 22 April 1766 her father was a powerful banker and her mother a Swiss pastor's daughter who never got over her good fortune in marrying a rich man In 1786 Germaine was married to a secretary in the Swedish embassy called de Stael but although she thought him a perfect gentleman she also found him dull and clumsy She began to take lovers the Vicomte de Narbonne and possibly Talleyrand and then Benjamin Constant in whom she at last met her intellectual equal In 1806 her novel Delphine was published It was an instant success and praised by Goethe and Byron among others Her salon thronged with glittering visitors including The Tsar Talleyrand and Wellington Maria Fairweather gives an entrancing account of this vanished world so merciless to outsiders but for those of the inner circle incomparably glamorous and exciting

France Eric Magnus Baron de Stael Holstein and in 1785 took over her mother's salon with great success Germaine and de Stael lived most of their married life apart She had many brilliant lovers Talleyrand was the first Narbonne the minister of war another Benjamin Constant was her most significant and long lasting one She published several political and literary essays including A Treatise on the Influence of the Passions upon the Happiness of Individuals and of Nations which became one of the most important documents of European Romanticism Her bold philosophical ideas particularly those in On Literature caused feverish commotion in France and were quickly noticed by Napoleon who saw her salon as a rallying point for the opposition He eventually exiled her from France This winner of the 1959 National Book Award is excellent detailed full of color movement great names and lively incident The New York Times Mr Herold's full bodied biography is clear eyed intelligent and written with abundant wit and zest The Atlantic Monthly

Against the wishes of her parents and the traditions of upper class French society Germaine de Staël 1766 1817 struggled to be accepted as a serious writer At a time when ladies wrote a little poetry and small stories Staël insisted on writing about politics and philosophy In an effort to abide by the rules of her society she wrote in two styles that of a woman and that of a man but as Charlotte Hogsett points out Staël's efforts to write as a man could not disguise the woman behind the pen Hogsett treats both the expository and fictional works in the Staël canon The male canon reflects her respect for Rousseau and Chateaubriand the female her own courage and intelligence for there was no one to emulate Hogsett provides a vivid analysis of Staël's maturation as both woman and writer
