Teaching practices and theories in the arts overlap in applied ways. Current teaching and curriculum issues are debated. Teaching explanations expressing the actions, character, and skills of an art, the knowledge claims, the truth relationships, ideas, and conceptions in student-focused, contingent ways are discussed. Familiar, ordinary, cherished, touching, sensitive, and dignified comprehensions are portrayed. In capacity-strengthening ways, the book attends to the elevated, consensual, continuous, broad, united, narrow, enlarged, diverse, open, freed, lively, inventive, imaginative, deeper, and richer horizons that exemplify how the arts in education as a common good contribute to society. This text argues persuasively why we should be teaching arts education more comprehensively in a public system of education and how we should be doing it.

Researching Literary Tourism Charlie Mansfield, 2015-04-06 Plymouth University academic. Dr Charlie Mansfield approaches literary tourism in this book initially from an historical perspective in order to define the phenomenon through a review of the existing academic literature in the field. The forms of literary tourism are analysed to provide a typology and from this the value of literary tourism is explained both from the visitor's point of view and the destination manager's. Current theories underpinning the existing literature on literary tourism, including Bourdieu's concept of cultural capital, are reviewed. To extend the current state of research and to answer the research questions, a case study of successful urban literary tourism is identified in Brittany, France. The uses of French literature in literary tourism are reviewed to provide a sound basis on which to examine French texts and tourist destinations. Novel methods of field research are developed to formalise and to make reproducible the methodology for this study and for future work, drawing on and seeking to combine both literary theory and ethnography. Following a pilot study on the French Riviera, the full discovery instruments are designed and applied in fieldwork on the case destination Concarneau using the detective novel The Yellow Dog, which is set in Concarneau. Analysis of the findings from this provides a new contribution to the field of literary theory in the area of reader interpellation and answers the research questions in the form of a new set of recommendations for DMOs and tourism stakeholders. From the empirical study that used Web 2.0 social media, only available since 2013, an analysis of which novels do stimulate literary tourism is presented for the first time. Out of the research process, new methods have been evolved and are presented in the conclusion for the DMO to synthesise and leverage digital resources. This provides DMOs with interpretation processes for its managed heritage to use with its local stakeholders in hotels and in tourism businesses. Finally, an innovative conceptualisation of what constitutes tourism knowledge is proposed.
