The Sense of Mission in Russian Foreign Policy Alicja Curanović, 2021-03-05 This book explores how far messianism the conviction that Russia has a special historical destiny is present in and affects Russian foreign policy Based on extensive original research including analysis of public statements policy documents and opinion polls the book argues that a sense of mission is present in Russian foreign policy that it is very similar in its nature to thinking about Russia's mission in Tsarist times that the sense of mission matters more for Russia's elites than for Russia's masses and that Russia's special mission is emphasised more when there are questions about the regime's legitimacy as well as great power status Overall the book demonstrates that a sense of mission is an important factor in Russian foreign policy Measuring Police Subcultural Perceptions Zheng Chen, 2015-11-21 Using survey data collected from 382 Chinese police officers training in a Chinese police university this research is the first empirical study to describe Chinese police perceptions of subcultural topics including the role of crime fighting and community service cynicism isolation solidarity receptivity to change and traditionalism This book describes the research method adopted in this study and the findings together with comparisons with Western police cultural studies In addition it covers an extensive review of Chinese policing history and evolution of policing strategies and a review of police subcultural themes and their potential determinants on the basis of Western studies making it both beneficial and of interest for researchers and practitioners who would like to know more about contemporary policing in China This book provides readers with insights into a little investigated area of policing the perceptions of Chinese frontline police It also makes it easy to compare the similarities and differences between police perceptions in China and the West

History and National Ideology in Greek Postmodernist Fiction Gerasimos Katsan, 2013-04-04 History and National Ideology in Greek Postmodernist Fiction investigates the ways postmodernist literary techniques have been adopted by Greek authors Taking into consideration the global impetus of postmodernism the book examines its local implications Framed by a discussion of major postmodernist thinkers the book argues for the ability of local cultures to retain their uniqueness in the face of globalization while at the same time adapting to the new global situation The combination of external global influences and the specific internal concerns of Greek national literature makes the emergence of postmodernism in Greece distinctive from that of other national contexts The book engages in larger theoretical debates about the crisis of national identity in the context of postmodern globalization and the resurgence of nationalist ideology either as a response to globalization or the exigencies of historical events This crisis has been brought on in part by the very postmodernist and poststructuralist questioning of the ideologies upon which nation states construct themselves The central argument of the book is that postmodernist Greek writers question the idea of national identity based on both the impact of globalization and a reexamination of the discourses of national ideology they suggest a turn away from the traditional concerns with cultural homogeneity towards an acceptance of multiplicity and diversity which is reflected through experimentation with postmodernist literary techniques Consequently the unifying idea of this book is national identity as it is reconfigured in recent contemporary novels My analysis incorporates the view that metafiction is a borderline or marginal discourse that exists on the boundary between fiction and criticism The book illuminates the connections between the formal concerns of contemporary authors and the larger debates and philosophical underpinnings of postmodernism in general
