Punishment and Process in International Criminal Trials Ralph Henham, 2017-03-02 International sentencing has become significant given the numerous events on the world stage which have focused attention on the justifications and adequacy of punishment for heinous crimes such as genocide and crimes against humanity In addition to providing a detailed evaluation of the philosophical and theoretical difficulties raised by this rapidly developing area of international criminal justice this book provides an integrated socio legal analysis of the law and process of international sentencing It considers the rationale and development of international sentencing structures and processes the nature and scope of legal and procedural constraints on decision making as well as access to justice and rights issues The book discusses sentencing within the context of international criminal law and examines internationalized trial processes and alternative mechanisms for resolution In seeking to comprehend the punishment of international crimes through the comparative contextual analysis of trial processes it challenges our present understanding of how and why particular sentencing outcomes are produced and the perceived legitimacy of international trial justice

Offender Supervision in Europe F. McNeill, K. Beyens, 2013-11-26 Offender supervision in Europe has developed rapidly in scale distribution and intensity in recent years. However, the emergence of mass supervision in the community has largely escaped the attention of legal scholars and social scientists more concerned with the mass incarceration reflected in prison growth. As well as representing an important analytical lacuna for penology in general and comparative criminal justice in particular, the neglect of supervision means that research has not delivered the knowledge that is urgently required to engage with political policy and practice communities grappling with delivering justice efficiently and effectively in fiscally straitened times and with the challenges of communicating the meaning, legitimacy and utility of supervision to an insecure public. This book reports the findings from a survey of European research on this topic undertaken during the first year of a European research network that spans twenty countries. As such, it provides the first comprehensive review of research on offender supervision in Europe, opening up an important new field of enquiry for comparative social science and offering the prospects of better informed democratic deliberation about key challenges facing contemporary justice systems, policymakers and practitioners and the societies they seek to serve.

Decisions to Imprison Rasmus H. Wandall, 2016-05-13 Rasmus Wandall uses quantitative and qualitative methods from studies carried out in Denmark to address the formal and informal norms and ideologies that are used to generate decisions to imprison. Focusing on the operations of the courtroom participants, his work investigates how court decision making is organized to allow the sentencing procedure to be open to more than its formal legal framework while at the same time keeping the sentencing within the boundaries of law and legal validity. The author uses the theory of law's operational closure developed by Niklas Luhmann. The theory provides an advantageous point of departure to capture the close and subtle interactions between law's need for validity and for contextual openness in every legal operation, including court decision making.

Law and Social Change Sharyn L. Roach Anleu, 2009-10-29 This is a timely new edition of Sharyn L. Roach Anleu's invaluable introduction to the sociology of law and its role as a social institution and social process. Discussing current theory and key empirical research from a diverse range of perspectives, Law and Social Change gives relevant examples from various cultures and societies to provide a sociological view which goes beyond more jurisprudential approaches to law and society. The book provides coverage of major classic and contemporary social theories of law, informed by empirical research drawn from several countries. Societies included up to date and relevant examples. This thoroughly updated edition engages with modern scholarship and recent research on globalization whilst also looking at related issues such as the internationalization of law and human rights. It explores recent reforms at local and national levels, including issues of migration and refugees, the regulation of anti-social behaviour and specialist or problem-solving courts, and also provides a clear, accessible introduction to research methods used in the socio-legal field. Direct and wide-ranging, this text will be essential reading for students and researchers on social science and law courses and in particular those taking sociology, legal theory, criminology and criminal justice studies.
