Sensory Deprivation Fifteen Years Of Research:

Sensory Deprivation John P. Zubek,1969 Sensory Deprivation John P. Zubek,1969 Sensory deprivation John P. Zubek,1969 On the Psychobiology of Personality Robert M Stelmack,2004-11-12 Zuckerman received his Ph D in psychology from New York University Graduate School of Arts and Science in 1954 with a specialization in clinical psychology After graduation he worked for three years as a clinical psychologist in state hospitals in Norwich Connecticut and Indianapolis Indiana While in the latter position the Institute for Psychiatric Research was opened in the same medical center where he was working as a clinical psychologist He obtained a position there with a joint appointment in the department of psychiatry This was his first interdisciplinary experience with other researchers in psychiatry biochemistry psychopharmacology and psychology His first research areas were personality assessment and the relation between parental attitudes and psychopathology During this time he developed the first real trait state test for affects starting with the Affect Adjective Check List for anxiety and then broadening it to a three factor trait state test including anxiety depression and hostility Multiple Affect Adjective Check List Later positive affect scales were added Toward the end of his years at the institute the first reports of the effects of sensory deprivation appeared and he began his own experiments in this field These experiments supported by grants from NIMH occupied him for the next 10 years during his time at Brooklyn College Adelphi University and the research labs at Albert Einstein Medical Center in Philadelphia This last job was his second interdisciplinary experience working in close collaboration with Harold Persky who added measures of hormonal changes to the sensory deprivation experiments He collaborated with Persky in studies of hormonal changes during experimentally hypnotically induced emotions During his time at Einstein he established relationships with other principal investigators in the area of sensory deprivation and they collaborated on the book Sensory Deprivation 15 years of research edited by John Zubek 1969 His chapter on theoretical constructs contained the idea of using individual differences in optimal levels of stimulation and arousal as an explanation for some of the variations in response to sensory deprivation The first sensation seeking scale SSS had been developed in the early 1960 s based on these constructs At the time of his move to the University of Delaware in 1969 he turned his full attention to the SSS as the operational measure of the optimal level constructs This was the time of the drug and sexual revolutions on and off campuses and research relating experience in these areas to the basic trait paid off and is continuing to this day in many laboratories Two books have been written on this topic Sensation Seeking Beyond the Optimal Level of Arousal 1979 Behavioral Expressions and Biosocial Bases of Sensation Seeking 1994 Research on sensation seeking in America and countries around the world continues at an unabated level of journal articles several hundred appearing since the 1994 book on the subject Behavioral Expressions and Biosocial Bases of Sensation Seeking Marvin Zuckerman,1994-06-24 This book is about a trait describing variations in the universal need for novel and intense stimulation and its expressions in various risky kinds of behaviour including driving habits health gambling financial risk alcohol and drug use and abuse sexual behaviour and sports Sensation seeking is also important in preferences for various vocations media forms and content food humour and social attitudes Compatibility in the trait influences premarital and marital relationship satisfaction Its modes of assessment behavioural expressions and genetic and psychobiological bases are described by one of the leading researchers in this field This book presents the only available study of this fascinating topic and it will be sure to interest researchers and their students active in personality research Consciousness, the Brain, States of Awareness, and Alternate Realities Daniel Goleman, Richard J. Davidson, 1979 Psychology of Space Exploration: Contemporary Research in Historical Perspective Douglas A. Vakoch, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, 2012-01-27 Through essays on topics including survival in extreme environments and the multicultural dimensions of exploration readers will gain an understanding of the psychological challenges that have faced the space program since its earliest days An engaging read for those interested in space history and psychology alike this is a highly relevant read as we stand poised on the edge of a new era of spaceflight Each essay also explicitly addresses the history of the psychology of space exploration The Oxford Handbook of Light in Archaeology Costas Papadopoulos, Holley Moyes, 2021-12-09 Light has a fundamental role to play in our perception of the world Natural or artificial lightscapes orchestrate uses and experiences of space and in turn influence how people construct and negotiate their identities form social relationships and attribute meaning to im material practices Archaeological practice seeks to analyse the material culture of past societies by examining the interaction between people things and spaces As light is a crucial factor that mediates these relationships understanding its principles and addressing illumination s impact on sensory experience and perception should be a fundamental pursuit in archaeology However in archaeological reasoning studies of lightscapes have remained largely neglected and understudied This volume provides a comprehensive and accessible consideration of light in archaeology and beyond by including dedicated and fully illustrated chapters covering diverse aspects of illumination in different spatial and temporal contexts from prehistory to the present Written by leading international scholars it interrogates the qualities and affordances of light in different contexts and im material environments explores its manipulation and problematises its elusive properties The result is a synthesis of invaluable insights into sensory experience and perception demonstrating illumination s vital impact on social cultural and artistic contexts Sensation Seeking Marvin Zuckerman, 2014-10-10 Originally published in 1979 this title represents a summary of 17 years of research centring around the Sensation Seeking Scale SSS and the theory from which the test was derived Now an integral part of personality testing including adaptations for use with children this reissue is a chance to see where it all began Man in Isolation and Confinement John E. Rasmussen, 2017-07-12 This book focuses on those special circumstances in which men alone or in groups are isolated or confined for periods of time long enough to affect the way in which they think and behave Active research in these phenomena initially grew out of a concern about prisoners of war in Korea and the presumed effects of brainwashing but this interest has been augmented by the technological advances that have allowed men to enter into isolation situations previously unattainable in outer space under the sea on the face of the moon or in remote places on the earth's surface. For the scientist himself applications of the knowledge derived from these special situations is obvious. The variety of ways in which the search may be carried on in both the laboratory and real life situations is amply illustrated in the approaches as well as the settings for research that are reviewed in this volume. This book represents the first attempt to cover the total spectrum of isolation and confinement in one volume. The chapters are arranged so as to begin with study of the individual proceed through artificial and natural groups and conclude with broad ecological and taxonomic considerations. Each chapter of the book has its own unique form however they have been planned and written to address a single central theme that increased understanding of this important social phenomenon depends upon a spectrum of conceptual and methodological strategy and on a continuing interplay between basic and applied research. The contributors are among the world's recognized experts in the area and because of its breadth the book constitutes an unusually complete reference to contemporary research on isolation. The volume has implications for urban planning and for space and undersea programs and will be useful for teachers and students of applied social and behavioral science.

Individual Differences and Psychopathology Anthony Gale, John A. Edwards, 2013-10-22 Physiological Correlates of Human Behaviour Vol 3 Individual Differences and Psychopathology offers an introduction to biological research into human behavior. The book discusses the three major dimensions of personality extraversion neuroticism and psychoticism and the major theories of the underlying psychophysiological causes for the observed differences in behavior and the theory of anxiety. The text also describes the measures of individual differences in habituation of physiological responses the perspectives on pain the cortical correlates of intelligence and sensation seeking as a biosocial dimension of personality. The individual differences in evoked potentials Pavlov's nervous system typology theories of psychosomatic disorders and the role of learning and organismic variables in criminality are also considered. The book further tackles some problems and controversies in the psychophysiological investigation of schizophrenia the psychophysiological contributions to psychotherapy research and the use of psychophysiological measures for investigating the influence of social factors on psychiatric relapse. Psychologists psychiatrists and behavioural psychologists will find the book invaluable.

Caves and the Ancient Greek Mind Yulia Ustinova, 2009-02-12 Caves and the Ancient Greek Mind analyses techniques of searching for ultimate wisdom in ancient Greece. The Greeks perceived mental experiences of exceptional intensity as resulting from divine intervention. They believed that to share in the immortals knowledge one had to liberate the soul from the burden of the mortal body by attaining an altered state of consciousness that is by merging with a superhuman being or through possession by a deity These states were often attained by inspired mediums impresarios of the gods prophets poets and sages who descended into caves or underground chambers Yulia Ustinova juxtaposes ancient testimonies with the results of modern neuropsychological research This novel approach enables an examination of religious phenomena not only from the outside but also from the inside it penetrates the consciousness of people who were engaged in the vision quest and demonstrates that the darkness of the caves provided conditions vital for their activities Towards an Ecology of Brain R. Walsh, 2012-12-06 Let us then consider for a moment the world as described by the physicist It consists of a number of fundamental particles which appear bound by certain natural laws which indicate the form of their relationship_ Now the physicist himself who describes all this is in his own account himself constructed of it He is in short made of a conglomeration of the very particulars he describes no more no less bound together by and obeying such general laws as he himself has managed to find and to record Thus we cannot escape the fact that the world we know is constructed in order and thus in such a way as to be able to see itself This is indeed amazing Not so much in view of what it sees although this may appear fantastic enough but in respect of the fact that it can see at all But in order to do so evidently it must first cut itself up into at least one state which sees and at least one other state which is seen In this severed and mutilated condition what ever sees is only partially itself We may take it that the world undoubtedly is itself i e is indistinct from itself but in any attempt to see itself as an object it must equally undoubtedly act so as to make itself distinct from and therefore false to itself In this condition it will always partially elude itself

Phenomenology and Treatment of Psychophysiological Disorders
W.E. Fann, I. Karacan, A.D. Pokorny, Robert L. Williams, 2012-12-06

The interrelationships between somatic and psychiatric complaints involve virtually every major organ system and every psychiatric diagnostic category Psychiatric distress frequently finds expression in physical ailment or pain and chronic physical illness or disability is a common exacerbant of psychiatric symptoms The complexity of the interplay between psychological and physiological disease is profound and many of the mechanisms involved remain undefined or imperfectly understood Our intention in assembling this volume the fifth in the Baylor Psychiatry Series has been to consolidate the most recent medical and psychiatric opinion on the description and treatment of psychophysiological disorders We have included reviews and new material on disorders long understood to be in the psychophysiological realm such as gastrointestinal disease pulmonary reactions headache and hypertension Additionally there are contributions on conditions less frequently but no less clearly recognized as psychophysiological or psychosomatic including immune response deficits epilepsy stuttering and sleep disorders Chapters on Couvade syndrome menstrually related mood disturbance obesity keratoconus and anorexia nervosa examine the degree to which psychological and physical events interact in conditions usually considered attributable essentially to a single system Drs Dowling and Gaitz have written excellent reviews of developmental elements in psychophysiological events and examine such disorders as they are specific to the very young or the very old Treatment approaches to the variety of disorders are discussed in chapters by Dr Decker who describes multifaceted modalities Dr Lomax who examines psychotherapeutic techniques and in a final chapter on psychopharmacological mitigation of psychophysiological syndromes

Cold War Workers Isabel Campbell, 2025-04-15

When Canada sought to protect its borders and aid its allies during the Cold War many people were recruited to build the emerging security state as construction and maintenance workers engineers members of the armed forces medical researchers and research subjects Security work transformed the lives of individuals families and communities in ways that were both predictable and surprising and both beneficial and harmful the militarization and colonization of Indigenous lives and lands was especially disruptive The opening essays of Cold War Workers intimately portray the complicated effects of Cold War labour upon Indigenous lives Elmer Sinclair a residential school survivor and member of the Canadian Armed Forces achieved equality with white men through his militarized masculinity His more positive professional experience contrasts with those of Indigenous workers on northern radar lines many of whom lost languages connections to the land and other elements of traditional cultures as they sought new skills and better employment Diverse Indigenous experiences of Cold War security work set the scene for the second set of essays which explore the impact of security preoccupations on marginalized groups the study of extreme isolation through scientific experimentation on human subjects the targeting of gay men with psychiatric labelling to enforce an idealized masculinity and the restriction of gender mobility in the Canadian military and the pushback from servicewomen Cold War Workers raises questions about the influence of settler colonial masculine institutional values on those who laboured for the Cold War state and society By comparing the experiences of different types of workers families and communities this volume reveals how race gender and privilege affected people in varied and sometimes unexpected ways
