Brown,2014-02-15 A century ago we got it wrong We sent thousands of young Australians on a military operation that was barely more than a disaster It s right that a hundred years later we should feel strongly about that But have we got our remembrance right What lessons haven t we learned about war and what might be the cost of our Anzac obsession Defence analyst and former army officer James Brown believes that Australia is expending too much time money and emotion on the Anzac legend and that today s soldiers are suffering for it Vividly evoking the war in Afghanistan Brown reveals the experience of the modern soldier He looks closely at the companies and clubs that trade on the Anzac story He shows that Australians spend a lot more time looking after dead warriors than those who are alive We focus on a cult of remembrance instead of understanding a new world of soldiering and strategy And we make it impossible to criticise the Australian Defence Force even when it makes the same mistakes over and over None of this is good for our soldiers or our ability to deal with a changing world With respect and passion Brown shines a new light on Anzac s long shadow and calls for change Bold original challenging James Brown tackles the burgeoning Anzac industry and asks Australians to re examine how we think about the military and modern day service Leigh Sales The best book yet written not just on Australia s Afghan war but on war itself and the creator destroyer myth of Anzac John Birmingham James Brown is a former Australian Army officer who commanded a cavalry troop in Southern Iraq served on the Australian taskforce headquarters in Baghdad and was attached to Special Forces in Afghanistan Today he is the Military Fellow at the Lowy Institute for International Policy where he works on strategic military issues and defence policy He also chairs the NSW Government s Contemporary Veterans Forum He lives in Sydney

The imperial Commonwealth Wm. Matthew Kennedy,2023-07-25 From the late 1800s to the early 1900s Australian settler colonists mobilised their unique settler experiences to develop their own vision of what empire was and could be Reinterpreting their histories and attempting to divine their futures with a much heavier concentration on racialized visions of humanity white Australian settlers came to believe that their whiteness as well as their Britishness qualified them for an equal voice in the running of Britain s imperial project Through asserting their case many soon claimed that as newly minted citizens of a progressive and exemplary Australian Commonwealth white settlers such as themselves were actually better suited to the modern task of empire Such a settler political cosmology with empire at its center ultimately led Australians to claim an empire of their own in the Pacific Islands complete with its own unique imperial governmentality
