Eroticism, Spirituality, and Resistance in Black Women's Writings Donna Aza Weir-Soley, 2017-06-13 Provocative articulates the importance of embodied erotic spirituality to black female subjectivity and empowerment Tulsa Studies in Women's Literature Sets out to reclaim the right of black women to their sexual and erotic expression untainted by the stereotypes and disparagements that have historically confined them African American Review Captures one of the most challenging concerns of scholars who engage black women's literature culture and theory the ongoing quest to locate a form of black female sexual agency that neither withers in the chilly lake of sexual repression nor explodes in the heat of hypersexual stereotypes MELUS Journal of the Society for the Study of the Multi Ethnic Literature of the United States Successfully undertakes an analysis of how black women writers have used overlapping narrative depictions of sexuality and spirituality to recast the denigrated black female body and rewrite an empowered and fully actualized black female subject Candice M Jenkins author of Private Lives Proper Relations Regulating Black Intimacy Weir Soley speaks with an authority that comes from real knowledge of investment in and attention to the details of the African cosmologies and textual complexities she unearths Carine Mardorossian SUNY Buffalo The most original and significant contributions are the often brilliant readings of Morrison Adisa and Danticat The work is riveting both methodologically and critically Leslie Sanders York University Western European mythology and history tend to view spirituality and sexuality as opposite extremes But sex can be more than a function of the body and religion more than a function of the mind as exemplified in the works and characters of such writers as Zora Neale Hurston Toni Morrison Opal Palmer Adisa and Edwidge Danticat Donna Weir Soley builds on the work of previous scholars who have identified the ways that black women's narratives often contain a form of spirituality rooted in African cosmology which consistently grounds their characters self empowerment and quest for autonomy What she adds to the discussion is an emphasis on the importance of sexuality in the development of black female subjectivity beginning with Hurston's Their Eyes Were Watching God and continuing into contemporary black women's writings Writing in a clear lucid and straightforward style Weir Soley supports her thesis with close readings of various texts including Hurston's Their Eyes Were Watching God and Morrison's Beloved She reveals how these writers highlight the interplay between the spiritual and the sexual through religious symbols found in Voudoun Santeria Condomble Kumina and Hoodoo Her arguments are particularly persuasive in proposing an alternative model for black female subjectivity Learning, Teaching, and Community Lucinda Pease-Alvarez, Sandra R. Schecter, 2006-04-21 This volume brings together established and new scholarly voices to explore how participatory and situated approaches to learning can contribute to educational innovation The contributors' critical examinations of educational programming and engagements provide insights into how educators youth families and community members understand and enact their commitments to diversity and equitable access Collectively these essays complicate notions of community alerting readers to ways in which community can be constructed other than in geographical and ethnoracial terms as alliances and collaborations of individuals joining together to accomplish or negotiate shared agendas The focus on agency combined with social context a dialectic to which all of the authors speak enlarges and invigorates our sense of what is pedagogically possible in societies characterized by diversity and flux Part I Linking Pedagogy to Communities focuses on dynamic initiatives where practitioners collaborate with community members and other professionals as they acknowledge and build on the cultural linguistic and intellectual resources of ethnic minority students and their communities Part II Professional Learning for Diversity centers on the authors experiences in facilitating opportunities for working with prospective and practicing teachers to develop situated pedagogies highlighting both the challenges that emerge and the transformations that occur Part III Learning in Community and Community in Learning illustrates how educational innovation can extend beyond the realm of schools and classrooms by elucidating ways in which individuals construct learning venues in out of school settings Learning Teaching and Community Contributions of Situated and Participatory Approaches to Educational Innovation is a compelling and timely text ideally suited for courses focused on teacher education and development informal learning equity and education multilingual and multicultural education language and culture educational foundations and school reform educational restructuring and will be equally of interest to faculty researchers and professionals in these areas

Womanism, Literature, and the Transformation of the Black Community, 1965-1980 Kalenda C. Eaton, 2010-06-21 This book examines how cultural and ideological reactions to activism in the post Civil Rights Black community were depicted in fiction written by Black women writers 1965 1980 By recognizing and often challenging prevailing cultural paradigms within the post Civil Rights era writers such as Toni Morrison Alice Walker Toni Cade Bambara and Paule Marshall fictionalized the black community in critical ways that called for further examination of progressive activism after the much publicized end of the Civil Rights Movement Through their writings the authors confronted marked shifts within African American literature politics and culture that proved detrimental to the collective wellness of the community at large
