Giesbrecht,Valorie A. Crooks,2016-06-03 Although health equity and diversity focussed research has begun to gain momentum there is still a paucity of research from health geographers that explicitly explores how geographic factors such as place space scale community and location inform multiple axes of difference Such axes can include residential location age sex gender race ethnicity culture religion socio economic status marital status sexual orientation education level and immigration status Specifically focussing on Canada s rapidly changing society which is becoming increasingly pluralized and diverse this book examines the place health diversity intersection in this national context Health geographers are well positioned to offer a valuable contribution to diversity focussed research because place is inextricably linked to differential experiences of health For example access to health care and health promoting services and resources is largely influenced by where one is physically and socially situated within the web of diversity Furthermore applying geographic concepts like place in both the physical and social sense allows researchers to explore multiple axes of difference simultaneously Such geographic perspectives as presented in this book offer new insights into what makes diverse people in diverse places with access to diverse resources un healthy in different ways in Canada and beyond Health Care for People with Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities across the Lifespan I.
