Memory, the City and the Legacy of World War II in East Central Europe Uilleam Blacker, 2019-06-27 After the Second World War millions of people across Eastern Europe displaced as a result of wartime destruction deportations and redrawing of state boundaries found themselves living in cities that were filled with the traces of the foreign cultures of the former inhabitants In the immediate post war period these traces were not acknowledged the new inhabitants going along with official policies of oblivion the national narratives of new post war regimes and the memorializing of the victors In time however and increasingly over recent decades the former other pasts have been embraced and taken on board as part of local cultural memory This book explores this interesting and increasingly important phenomenon It examines official ideologies popular memory literature film memorialization and tourism to show how other pasts are being incorporated into local cultural memory It relates these developments to cultural theory and argues that the relationship between urban space cultural memory and identity in Eastern Europe is increasingly becoming a question not only of cultural politics but also of consumption and choice alongside a tendency towards the cosmopolitanization of memory

San Francisco Relocated Diane C. Donovan, 2015-10-12 San Francisco's colorful history has been explored so extensively that it is surprising to note that its moved buildings remain one of the city's best kept secrets Reports are widely scattered in newspapers and architectural references yet despite the fact that the city's relocations are second only to Chicago's there are no books in print concerning this curious history until now And it is a long lively tale indeed Beginning in 1850 and continuing today it involves hundreds of moved structures from houses and apartment buildings to churches and schools Buildings were relocated for many reasons from street modifications in the early 1900s to the advent of freeways and Bay Area Rapid Transit BART in the 1950s and 1960s Buildings were cut in half and moved in pieces disassembled and moved brick by brick or more commonly moved intact some as heavy as 9 000 tons or as long as 110 feet Buildings moved to San Francisco via ship around Cape Horn traveled across town using horses and wagons or later trucks and were barged over the Bay

The Illustrated London News ,1926 History of the Literary Cultures of East-Central Europe Marcel Cornis-Pope,John Neubauer,2006-09-13 Continuing the work undertaken in Vol 1 of the History of the Literary Cultures of East Central Europe Vol 2 considers various topographic sites multicultural cities border areas cross cultural corridors multiethnic regions that cut across national boundaries rendering them permeable to the flow of hybrid cultural messages By focusing on the literary cultures of specific geographical locations this volume intends to put into practice a new type of comparative study Traditional comparative literary studies establish transnational comparisons and contrasts but thereby reconfirm however inadvertently the very national borders they play down This volume inverts the expansive momentum of comparative studies towards ever broader regional European and world literary histories While the theater of this volume is still the literary culture of East Central Europe the contributors focus on pinpointed local traditions and geographic nodal points Their histories of Riga Plovdiv Timi oara or Budapest of Transylvania or the Danube corridor to take a few examples reveal how each of these sites was during the last two hundred years a home for a variety of foreign or ethnic literary traditions next to the one now dominant within the national borders By foregrounding such non national or hybrid traditions this volume pleads for a diversification and pluralization of local and national histories A genuine comparatist revival of literary history should involve the recognition that treading on native grounds means actually treading on grounds cultivated by diverse people
