Sacred Landscapes in Antiquity Ralph Haussler, Gian Franco Chiaia, 2020-07-31 From generation to generation people experience their landscapes differently Humans depend on their natural environment it shapes their behavior while it is often felt that deities responsible for both natural benefits and natural calamities such as droughts famines floods and landslides need to be appeased We presume that in many societies lakes rivers rocks mountains caves and groves were considered sacred Individual sites and entire landscapes are often associated with divine actions mythical heroes and etiological myths Throughout human history people have also felt the need to monumentalize their sacred landscape But this is where the similarities end as different societies had very different understandings beliefs and practices The aim of this new thematic appraisal is to scrutinize carefully our evidence and rethink our methodologies in a multi disciplinary approach More than 30 papers investigate diverse sacred landscapes from the Iberian peninsula and Britain in the west to China in the east They discuss how to interpret the intricate web of ciphers and symbols in the landscape and how people might have experienced it We see the role of performance ritual orality textuality and memory in people's sacred landscapes A diachronic view allows us to study how landscapes were rewritten adapted and redefined in the course of time to suit new cultural political and religious understandings not to mention the impact of urbanism on people's understandings A key question is how was the landscape manipulated transformed and monumentalized especially the colossal investments in monumental architecture we see in certain socio historic contexts or the creation of an alternative humanmade seemingly non natural landscape with perfectly astronomically aligned buildings

Swanson, Charles M. Crisafulli, 2006-01-16 Recon guring Disturbance Succession and Forest Management The Science of Mount St Helens When Mount St Helens erupted on May 18 1980 it did more than just recon gure a large piece of Cascadian landscape It also led to dramatic revisions in our perspectives on disturbances secondary succession and forestry practices The Mount St Helens landscape turned out to be a far more complex place than the moonscape that it initially appeared to be Granted a large area was literally scoured and sterilized and that vast expanse of newly formed rock mud ows and avalanche debris up and down the mountain made the Mount St Helens landscape unique But I still remember my surprise when as I stepped out of the helicopter on rst landing within the extensive devastated zone I saw hundreds of plants pushing their way up through the mantel of tephra Surviving organisms were stunning in their diversity abundance and the mechanisms by which they survived They persisted as whole organisms living below ground encased within late persisting snowbanks and buried in lake and stream sediments They survived as rhizomes transported along with the massive landslide that accompanied the eruption and as stems that suffered the abrasion of mud ows Mud ows oated nurse logs covered with tree seedlings and then redeposited them on the oor of a forested river terrace Millions perhaps billions of plants survived as rootstocks and rhizomes that pushed their way up through the tephra and others survived on the bases of uprooted trees
