Pressure Group Behaviour In Canadian Politics:

Pressure Group Behaviour in Canadian Politics A. Paul Pross, 1975 Political Marketing in Canada Alex Marland, Thierry Giasson, Jennifer Lees-Marshment, 2012-02-15 Political parties worldwide are using marketing tools such as targeting and segmentation to win elections Are these strategies making politicians and governments more responsive to voters needs or do they pose a threat to democracy Political Marketing in Canada the first book to ask this question of Canada considers the consequences of political marketing in the realms of public policy leadership and the government citizen relationship Through dynamic case studies that range from the resurrection of the Conservative Party to media accounts of political marketing to Tim Hortons as a political brand the authors trace how political marketing is transforming the old system of brokerage politics into a new distinctly Canadian model Citizens are now viewed as consumers and platforms and promises have been repackaged as products Whether this trend is positive or negative the authors argue depends on how politicians and governments carry out political marketing and its promises in practice The Provincial Political Systems David J. Bellamy, Jon H. Pammett, Donald Cameron Rowat, 1976 Interest Groups and Campaign Finance Reform in the United States and Canada Robert G Boatright, 2011-03-15 In the early 2000s the United States and Canada implemented new campaign finance laws restricting the ability of interest groups to make political contributions and to engage in political advertising Whereas both nations legislative reforms sought to reduce the role of interest groups in campaigns these laws have had opposite results in the two nations In the United States interest groups remained influential by developing broad coalitions aimed at mobilizing individual voters and contributors In Canada interest groups largely withdrew from election campaigns and thus important voices in elections have gone silent Robert G Boatright explains such disparate results by placing campaign finance reforms in the context of ongoing political and technological changes Robert G Boatright is Associate Professor of Political Science at Clark University Cover photo iStockphoto com alfabravoalpharomeo

Shifting Sands Joan Price Boase, 1994-03-01 During the 1970s and 1980s policymaking in the complex area of regulatory legislation of the health disciplines became both increasingly important and increasingly difficult for the Canadian provinces In this comparative study Joan Boase traces the evolution of relationships among governments and health care interest groups in four provinces Ontario Quebec Nova Scotia and Alberta and finds that although they have faced similar problems they have responded in different ways She employs several theoretical approaches to explain these different responses including community policy networks institutionalism and state traditions and uses case studies to illustrate the intense interest group activity that has occurred in this sector Boase reaches three conclusions 1 with the development of a national health insurance plan there has been a shift in the actions of government from reliance on interest group liberalism towards concerted efforts to plan the structure of the welfare system 2 the different systems of interest intermediation that evolved in the provinces reflected the underlying political and administrative culture and institutional structures within the provinces and 3 the unique proactive approach taken by Ontario in the 1980s was a deliberate effort to modify the institutional arrangements through which groups had traditionally influenced policy Boase suggests that the complexities of modern government and the move towards redistributive politics will lead the state to make extraordinary efforts to control its environment in the future Shifting Sands will be of particular interest to health care specialists policy makers and legislators as well as activists Roasting Chestnuts Ian Stewart, 2011-11-01. Roasting Chestnuts: The Mythology of Maritime Political Culture is a book about outdated political stereotypes. The Maritime provinces of New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and Nova Scotia are often regarded as pre-modern hinterland in which corrupt practices and traditional loyalties continue to predominate. While this depiction of Maritime political life may at one time have been largely accurate, this is no longer the case. Employing a variety of indicators, this book argues that a new set of political images is needed to capture Maritime political reality today. What emerges from the analysis is a picture of Maritime politics which no longer differs markedly from that which exists in the rest of Canada. Maritimers no longer exhibit remarkably low levels of political trust and efficacy, nor is there a regional political culture which transcends provincial boundaries. In fact, Maritime political elites have been innovators, providing radical departures from Canadian political norms. A unique and innovative study, Roasting Chestnuts seeks to demystify Maritime politics and expose the flimsy basis for many of the region's lasting political stereotypes.

Canada, Latin America, and the New Internationalism Brian J. R. Stevenson, Teleglobe Raoul-Dandurand Chair of Strategic and Diplomatic Studies, Université du Québec à Montréal. Centre d'études des politiques étrangères et de sécurité, 2000. Post-war Canadian foreign policy has been characterized by two enduring themes: an ongoing commitment to multilateralism on the one hand and a substantial commitment to continentalism on the other. In the early 1970s, the post-war structures for international politics and economics entered a period that led to a dramatic transformation based on the relative decline of the United States, punctuated by the end of the cold war, the rise of economic interdependence, and the new internationalism and the emergence of citizen-centered foreign policy. These three factors have had a substantial impact on both Canada's role in the world and its relationships with its main political and economic partners.
