Regional

Environmental Changes in Siberia and Their Global Consequences Pavel Ya. Groisman, Garik Gutman, 2012-08-14 This volume presents a state of the art assessment of the Earth's climate system in Siberia and relationships between climate ecosystems and people in that region. Changes in climatic variables and land cover in Siberia are among the earliest indicators of the Earth's response to climate warming. The volume is a compilation of results from studies on climate land cover and land use changes and their interactions with biogeochemical and water cycles, atmospheric aerosol, and human and wildlife populations in Siberia. Regional changes in Siberia are predicted to affect climate and people on a global scale. NASA, the Russian Academy of Sciences, and several European institutions have supported these studies. The primary supporter of the projects that produced the results compiled in this volume is the NASA Land Cover Land Use Change Program; hence, most studies use remote sensing in their research. The chapters in this volume were written by an international team of scientists from the USA, Europe, and Russia under the auspices of the Northern Eurasia Earth Science Partnership Initiative (NEESPI). This book will be of interest to those involved in studying recent and ongoing changes in Siberia, be they senior scientists, early career scientists, or students.

Turning Points of World Transformation Marina Lebedeva, Vladimir Morozov, 2022-06-17 This book explores the transformation of the political organization of the world as manifest in different spheres of world politics, in particular in world politics, regional studies, interaction of MNCs and government agencies, and state responses to biogenic challenges. To achieve this goal, M. Lebedeva proposes the concept of a political organization of the world which, in modern conditions, is in the process of transformation. The transformation of the political organization of the world is accompanied by megatrends: globalization, integration, democratization, and the opposite trends: de-globalization, disintegration, dedemocratization. Interdisciplinary in nature, this book brings together scholars from Russia, the United States, and Canada and provides a compelling perspective on the geopolitics of our time.

Climate Change Discourse in Russia Marianna Poberezhskaya, Teresa Ashe, 2018-08-06 This book explores the development of climate change discourses in Russia. It contributes to the study of climate change as a cultural idea by developing the extensive Anglophone literature on environmental science, politics, and policy pertaining to climate change in the West to consider how Russian discourses of climate change have developed. Drawing on contributors specialising in numerous periods, regions, disciplines, and topics of study, the central thread of this book is the shared attempt to understand how environmental issues, particularly climate change, have been understood, investigated, and conceptualised in Soviet and post-Soviet Russia. The chapters aim to complement work on the history of the discursive political construction of climate change in the West by examining a highly contrasting but intimately related cultural context. Russia remains one of the world's largest greenhouse gas emitters, with one of the most carbon-intensive economies. As the world begins to suffer the extreme consequences of anthropogenic climate change, finding adequate solutions to global environmental problems necessitates the participation of all countries. Russia is a central actor in this global process, and it therefore becomes increasingly important to understand climate change.
